Red Testifies He Traveled to Soviet Union to Avoid Sentence

Dies Wants U. S. Ac- tion Because of Convict's Story

FALSE PAPERS

Witness Declares Com- munists Financed Flight to Russia

Washington (P)—Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the house un-American committee suggested today the state department should look into future relations with Russia because of testimony that a communist labor organizer, fleeing a North Carolina prison sentence, found refuge in the Soviet union.

The testimony was given by Fred Erwin Beal, at present a North Carolina convict brought here to tell about various labor disturbances in which he said he participated a decade ago.

Resuming today the testimony he started Wednesday, Beal said that the Communist party had financed a trip he made to Russia while he was a fugitive from justice and that he entered Russia on a false passport with the knowledge of Soviet officials.

"It seems to me that this ought to cause considerable concern down at the state department about our future relations with Russia," Dies commented.

Beal is serving from 17 to 20 years for conspiracy to murder Police Chief O. F. Aderhold during the 1929 Gastonia, N. C., textile strike, which he said he helped organize.

Returned in 1931.
The witness testified Wednesday that he made one trip to Russia in 1930, while on appeal bond, with money and encouragement from Communist headquarters in New York. He did not like conditions there and so returned to this country early in 1931, he added.

Meanwhile, he resumed today, the North Carolina court refused his appeal, his $5,000 bail bond was forfeited, and he became a fugitive.

When he returned from his first trip to Russia, Beal said, "the Communist party ganged up" to get him to go back.

He mentioned William Z. Foster, present party chairman, Leon Josephson, whom Beal identified as "a Communist party O.G.P.U. man in this country," and George Maurer of International Labor Defense as persons who argued he should return.

Refused to Return
"Josephson was of the opinion that they should have shot me before I left," Beal said.

All three offered persuasive arguments to find him, he said, but he remained in the United States until September, 1931. While here, he testified, he stayed a short time at the camp of Roger Baldwin of the Civil Liberties union, with the understanding that he would go to North Carolina to give himself up.

Later, Beal said, he spent several months at the farm of Corinna Michaelson in Connecticut.

When he agreed finally to return to Russia, the witness asserted, his visa was obtained for him by Jack Haney, identified as New York City school teacher. He said he used the same false passport he had obtained for his earlier trip. It was made out to "Samuel Cohn."

Moscow to Receive
Finland's Proposals

Helsinki (P)—Former Premier Dr. Juho Kusti Passikivi will leave for Moscow late tomorrow night with Finland's counter-proposals to the Soviet government.

There were expected in diplomatic circles to reflect the decisions reached at this week's Stockholm conference of neutral Nordic countries—to avoid entangling alliances and protect their neutrality and independence.

A government spokesman said another delegate may be added to Passikivi's party "to give it more authority." This was viewed as significant in some circles, but the interrupted conversations with Moscow were not expected to be concluded at the new conference.

Advertising Device
Speaks For Itself

A robot advertising device that begins talking the moment a person steps in its vicinity is the invention of David A. Weiss and William L. Woolf of New York. The patent is assigned to Talking Advertising Company of New York. Sound like a great idea to get an advertising message across, but it might turn out to be a bit nerve-racking to step near one on a dark night. This Post-Crescent Rental Ad spoke for itself . . . and quite effectively, too.

Sen. Johnson Scoffs At Fears 'We're Next' After Hitler Conquers

Washington (P)—An argument that repeal of the arms embargo would lead the United States into war was answered in the senate today with the assertion that this country must defend Canada under terms of the Monroe doctrine.

Senator Barbour (R-N.J.) said that the United States can not help its northern neighbor under the existing neutrality law and contended that an attack on Canada not only would violate the Monroe doctrine but would "force us into war."

Senator Ellender (D-La.), advocate of repeal, answered those who contend that that action would offend Germany by saying:

"What do we owe this mad dictator, this insatiable despoiler of men and nations, this violator of treaties, that we must tread on tip-toe to spare him displeasure?"

"Since when has it become necessary that we should consult with Hitler or with any foreign power before considering the wishes of our own people?"

Washington (P)—Senator Johnson (R-Calif.), labelled as "an idiotic assumption" today what he declared to be the main argument for repeal of the arms embargo: That Hitler could conquer Europe and "we will be next."

The 73-year-old veteran of the League of Nations fight of 20 years ago took the senate floor to start off the fifteenth day of debate on the administration's program of "neutrality revision" which has as its principal point the removal of the embargo on arms.

Johnson, his white hair shaking in emphasis, called that proposed action, which it is admitted by many would give England and France an advantage over Germany in American arms markets, the "first false step."

"It will place us in the shadow, walking down the bloody path of war," he said.

The argument of administration supporters favoring repeal, reduced to its simplest terms, he told colleagues, was "that if we don't stop Hitler now he will conquer Europe and we will be next."

"War Psychology"
"What an idiotic assumption!" he declared. "And yet earnest and honest men repeat it. If we were not afflicted with a war psychology, we would not listen to this reason for repeal of the arms embargo for one-quarter of a second."

"Hitler will never conquer Europe. It has never been done by anyone yet. Countless efforts have been made to establish hegemony by force and none have succeeded. The closest approach to any was by Napoleon, and to compare Hitler with Napoleon is absurd."

Johnson said he thought the United States had little to fear no matter who won the European war. The physical exhaustion of Europe, he argued, would leave the participants without manpower or material to launch aggressive campaigns.

New Amendments
Senate opponents gave notice today of a series of fresh amendments to the administration neutrality bill, despite their expected acquiescence to proposed changes in shipping regulations.

Senator Clark (D-Mo.) a repeal opponent, expressed dissatisfaction with president Roosevelt's action in banning belligerent submarines from American waters, and said he would propose an amendment to the neutrality bill extending the prohibition to armed merchantmen.

He said he also expected to raise the question that there was nothing in the bill which would prevent

Gambling Chief Given Six Years In U. S. Prison

Carollo Sentenced for Per- jury, Mail Fraud and Tax Evasion

Kansas City (P)—Charles V. Carollo, Kansas City's 240-pound gambling overlord, was sentenced today to six years and a day in prison.

Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis sentenced him to four years for perjury concerning his income, a year and a day for mail fraud and three years for income-tax evasion, but specified the three-year sentence could be cut to one year by payment of delinquent taxes.

The 37-year-old gambling czar will be sent to Leavenworth penitentiary where Tom Pendergast, once boss of the powerful Democratic city machine, is serving 15 months for dodging income taxes.

Carollo testified he collected as high as $1,000 a month from each of Kansas City's gambling places and said he turned the money over to Pendergast.

Before sentence was passed, United States District Attorney Maurice Milligan, who prosecuted the notorious 1936 votes fraud scandals here and also aided in sending Pendergast to prison, said concerning Carollo:

"He became the notorious link between politics and the underworld, and his word became law in the circles of the underworld."

Gore Is Acquitted of Slaying but Still to Face Larceny Charge

Benton, Ill.—(P)—Acquitted on a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of his stepmother, George W. Gore, Jr. of Cape Girardeau, Mo., remained in the Franklin county jail today awaiting removal to Jackson, Mo., where he faces a larceny charge.

After deliberating two hours, a circuit court jury yesterday convicted the 32-year-old Gore of slaying Mrs. Nancy Gore, 45, on the sleeping porch of her home here July 23. The slain woman was the former secretary and second wife of Dr. George W. Gore, Sr.

Young Gore signed a waiver of extradition and will go to Missouri Wednesday. At Jackson, he and his 22-year-old wife, Katherine, face charges of larceny of $710 from Miss Beas Weathers, who resided at the same rooming house with them in Cape Girardeau.

But here attention now turns to the elder Gore, who faces trial on a charge of murder in the street slaying Sept. 25 of Carl Choiser, Benton publisher-at-large, who had been counsel for the son.

Youth Waives Hearing In Slaying of Father

Ishpeming, Mich.—(P)—Laurie Laakso, 24, waives examination when arraigned today in a first degree murder charge in connection with the fatal shooting and slaying of his father, Gustave.

Laakso will be held at the Marquette county jail until the November term of circuit court.

Legislators Continue to Hit Back at Governor for 'Wine, Women and Song' Statement

Milwaukee (P)—State senators and assemblymen of all three Wisconsin political parties continued today to retort to Governor Heil's declaration that legislators paid too much attention to "wine, women and song."

Comment included:

State Senator Kenneth Greenquist (P) Racine: "I did not see any of this wine, women and song. If Governor Heil did, he must have hung out in different places than I did."

Assemblyman Harold Lytle (D) Green Bay: "I must have missed out on lots of things, if what he says is true. Personally, I think it is a ridiculous statement."

Assemblyman Benjamin W. Dietrich (R) Sheboygan: "Wine, wom-

Operator Fined In Gambling Case

First Handbook Agent As- sessed in Chicago. At- torney, Asserts

Chicago (P)—The first gambling fine against a handbook operator in Chicago was imposed today by Judge Stephen Adamowski after three Negro operators were convicted of gambling and possession of gambling equipment.

Ray LaBlanc, 31, Charles Austin, 29, and John Barbour, 44, pleaded innocent to the charges but admitted the truth of testimony of Police Officer Edward J. Kelly that he placed a $2 bet with LaBlanc yesterday.

LaBlanc was fined $225 and the others $125 each.

In hundreds of previous cases in which a policeman testified to placing a bet, the court has held that the action constituted entrapment and declined to convict.

Clement Dernbach, assistant state's attorney, said this was the first gambling fine imposed on a handbook operator.

Judge Adamowski started his term on the racket court bench Oct. 2.

Sixty-one bookie cases in which he previously granted continuances were due for hearings today.

MAY GET POST.

Madison (P)—Lawrence C. Whitel (above), Edgerton, was mentioned today for appointment as administrator under the state code bill which Governor Heil signed into law yesterday.

The measure created a special division within the department of agriculture and markets to supervise codes of fair competition for four service trades—barbers, cosmeticians, shoe repairers and cleaners.

The administrator will have power to regulate prices, hours of work and trade practices in counties over 30,000 population and all contiguous counties.

Treaty Must Not Add to Surpluses, Wiley's Position

Thinks Agreement Could Be Reached With Govern- ment of Argentina

Washington (P)—Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) filed a statement with the committee on reciprocity information in opposition to any trade treaty with Argentina that would "further increase" domestic agricultural surpluses.

The senator said he believed, however, it should be possible to negotiate with Argentina so that the concessions granted would not further dislocate the agricultural economy by increasing such surpluses.

"I realize that the negotiations may offer an opportunity," he said in a letter to the committee, "for the United States to garner some of the trade which in times of peace went normally to Europe."

Wiley also noted that an agreement might strengthen commercial ties and said the idea of expanding the Argentine market for United States industrial exports was "wholly constructive."

Must Buy Exports
"It is equally apparent, however, that to create this expanded market, it is necessary that we take a larger volume of Argentine exports," the senator said.

"These exports unfortunately are largely competitive with our farm products. This is a serious objection unless it can be demonstrated that the resultant increase in domestic industrial activity would be sufficient to expand our domestic agricultural market sufficiently to absorb both this new load of imports and a larger domestic agricultural production at better price levels than those established in the current year."

It is inconsistent to raise the industrial export level while materially damaging the agricultural segment of our economic life so that it in turn is reflected in a smaller domestic market for American industry.

It is equally inconsistent for the administration to grant concessions on competitive agricultural imports while it is at the same time paying our farmers to reduce their acreage in similar products."

Indiana Aviators Continue Flight After Near Mishap

Muncie, Ind.—(P)—Muncie's contenders for a new light airplane endurance record droned along in their nineteenth day in the air today but only after narrowly escaping injury last night.

Robert McDaniels of Muncie, who took off from the Muncie airport at 10:53 a. m. Oct. 1, had their closest call as they flew over a group of men near the airport just as some aerial bombs were touched off in lighting a fiery cross.

The fliers were preparing to take on fuel and were flying low when the bombs were fired.

The lightning of the cross, reminiscent of the days of the Ku Klux Klan, was the tenth such incident in this county since August.

Buckman, George Ask Temporary Freedom

Madison (P)—Governor Heil had under advisement today a request that B. E. Buckman and Louis C. George, officers of a defunct Madison securities firm, be released temporarily from state prison to prepare for a federal court trial.

The former Buckman company officers, now serving terms of one to three years each for violating state securities laws, were scheduled for trial at the next jury term of federal court here on charges of violating the federal securities act.

Their attorney, Carl N. Hill of Madison, asked that they be permitted to leave Waupun for short periods under guard to study records held by the government as evidence and impounded in Madison.

Mediation Is Sidetracked in Labor Dispute

Chrysler Corp. Says Time 'Not Proper' for State Board Action

CONFABS RESUMED

Firm Holds State Need Not Intervene While Negotiations Continue

Detroit (P)—Negotiations in the prolonged controversy in Chrysler auto plants growing out of "slow down-speed up" charges returned to a "private" basis today after the corporation objected to the state's intervention as mediator.

Efforts by the state labor mediator board to take charge of peace parleys between Chrysler and the CIO-United Automobile Workers collapsed yesterday, in Lansing when corporation spokesmen claimed the time was "not proper" for such action.

Union and corporation officials, who exchanged fresh accusations after the close of the Lansing conferences, agreed to meet here today, and the board insisted on its own "attendance." More than 57,000 auto factory workers remained idle.

"The corporation, accused by the union of being 'contemptuous' of both state and federal officials in objecting to state intervention, took the stand that since contract negotiations 'still were going on' with the U. A. W. A-CIO, state mediation was unnecessary."

Object to Mediation
"The union has advised us," said Lester L. Colbert, counsel for Chrysler, "that it has not yet finished submitting portions of the contract to us. We told the board that we certainly thought mediation at this time was not in order."

R. J. Thomas, union president, retorted that the contract negotiations were "subordinate" to discussions of the slow-down and speed-up dispute. He charged that "the attitude of the corporation's spokesmen was contemptuous in the extreme toward representatives of the state and federal governments."

Edward L. Weickler, a corporation vice president, said "the union's attempt to move to Lansing was only another step in a well planned series."

Historical Society Reports It Faces Financial Crisis

Madison (P)—The Wisconsin Historical society's executive committee forwarded to Governor Heil and the emergency board today a statement declaring the society faces a financial crisis and any further reduction of state aid would be hard to bear.

Superintendent Joseph Shafer asserted in his annual report the society needed additional facilities to house its newspaper, manuscript and museum collections.

"We don't want to have to cut pay rolls, or to curtail services but there is no other alternative if we are not granted funds," he said.

The emergency board recently advised the society, along with other state departments, it might be necessary to cut allotments 25 per cent after Dec. 31.

Five curators were named to fill vacancies caused by death and nine were reelected, all for three year terms. New members are Ralph G. Plumb, of Manitowish; Mrs. G. E. Ingram, Eau Claire; Emery A. Odell, Monroe; Ruth B. Jeffris, Janesville, and H. R. Holland, Ephraim.

Five Establishments Face Padlock Charges

Shawano (P)—James H. Larson, 23-year-old district attorney of Shawano county, announced yesterday that padlock proceedings had been instituted against five establishments whose operators were arrested in August on charges of conducting disorderly houses.

When the cases were in court, five operators and twenty-two inmates were fined and ordered to leave the county if they did not own property. Operators owning property were ordered to clean up their establishments or face padlock proceedings.

Circumstances Govern Limits Of U. S. Territorial Waters, Chief Executive Maintains

Hyde Park, N. Y.—(P)—President Roosevelt took the position today that the limits of United States territorial waters are flexible, varying from three to hundreds of miles, depending on the circumstances under which the limits are created.

In the case of belligerent submarines, which have been barred from American ports or territorial waters, the president said at a press conference that the limit of such waters was three miles.

In the case of rum-runners in prohibition days, he said it was 150 miles.

In the case of the neutrality patrol, the limit is farther out, roughly within the safety zones laid down at the recent Panama conference of the 21 American republics. That zone extends at least 300 miles.

But in any event, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, the territorial limits are in accordance with specific cases involving safety and neutrality.

Nazis Scent World War in Turk Pact; Britain Is Jubilant

London Is Convinced Treaty Will Safeguard Rumania and Greece Against Reich Attack

London (P)—Great Britain counted Germany twice a loser today—stymied both by the signing of a British-French mutual assistance pact with Turkey and by bad weather on the western front.

Responsible British comment argued that the treaty signed at Ankara last night had blocked penetration of German influence in the Balkans, particularly Rumania.

In a nutshell, if Germany attacks Rumania or Greece, Turkey will be in on our side," the News Chronicle put it.

Military observers declared that continuing heavy rains on the western front, meanwhile, greatly lessened chances of success for any attempted German lightning offensive against the allied armies.

In diplomatic circles, far-reaching implications were read into the British-French-Turkish treaty for mutual military aid against "aggression" in the Mediterranean.

Terms of Pact
By the pact, operative for 15 years, Britain and France must help Turkey if she is the victim of aggression by "a European power" or if aggression by a European power leads "to war in the Mediterranean area in which Turkey is involved."

In return, Turkey must help the western allies if "an act of aggression by a European power leads to war in the Mediterranean area or if the United Kingdom and France are engaged in hostilities in virtue of their guarantees to Greece and Rumania of April 13, 1939.

Turkey, however, cannot be compelled to honor any pledges that would involve her in war with Soviet Russia and the allied powers would not be called on to fight

Start Voting on Nash Agreement

Union Members to Decide Whether to Accept Compromise

Kenosha (P)—Members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) union employed in the Nash Motors division of the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation started voting this afternoon on the question of ratifying an agreement which would end their 20-day strike.

The union called a strike Oct. 1 in an attempt to force adoption of a formal contract which would be substituted for a working agreement heretofore in effect.

Union representatives and company officials drew up a compromise agreement in the early hours of Thursday after a 12-hour conference.

The compromise makes no provision for a week's vacation with pay, requested by the union, but eliminates a clause that the union refrain from coercion or intimidation of Nash workers substituting therefor a provision that no union activity other than the handling of grievances shall be conducted on company premises or time.

The question of overtime work would be subject to bargaining, the union would remain in control of its grievance machinery. And there would be no provision for a guaranteed minimum work here.

Under the agreement, the company would regulate layoffs so the employees retained would get as near to 32 hours of work a week as possible; grant a 5-cent-an-hour raise in the minimum day wages of employees; pay overtime to powerhouse employees working on holidays; and agree not to displace with women, male employees on the production lines.

Berlin Politicians Expect Baltic to Be Affected LOOK TO ITALY

Say Britain Couldn't Help Turkey 'Even if She Wanted to'

Berlin (P)—Germany views the mutual assistance pact between the allies and Turkey with "critical eyes," authoritative quarters declared today, in the fear it might hold the spark for general war.

The German political world appeared stunned by the 15-year treaty concluded last night at Ankara by Turkey, Germany's World War ally, and Great Britain and France.

Political circles looked for repercussions in the Balkan countries, but how far Balkan neutrality would be affected was not yet clear, they said.

The opinion was expressed that the Balkans would see in Turkey's action a renunciation of desire to safeguard neutrality.

The new situation in the Mediterranean was viewed with gravest apprehension in informed circles, inasmuch as Italian and Soviet Russian interests were regarded as directly involved.

See Italian Action
These quarters looked to Italy to react as the Mediterranean power, and expressed the opinion that the treaty was sufficient cause to bring about Italian-Russian cooperation similar to that between Russia and Germany.

In the lack of official comment, these sources represented Germany as utterly at a loss to explain the action of the Turkish government. They called the pact "contrary to Turkey's best interests."

British sources informed persons asserted, would be unable to help Turkey under the new pact "even if she wanted to." They referred to the date of Poland which also had been given a British guarantee.

"England can not help Turkey any more than she helped Poland," they declared, one adding: "God help the Angolan peasants. There are no trees to hide behind when the bombers come. There were trees in Poland."

No Immediate Threat
These Nazis, however, professed to see no immediate threat to Germany's strategic military position, despite the fact the new treaty was interpreted as practically giving Germany's "chief enemy"—Britain—control of the Dardanelles.

It was learned no official reaction would be forthcoming until after the return of the German ambassador to Turkey.

Hitler's immediate reaction appeared to have been formal ratification of the German friendship treaty with Russia, signed at Moscow Sept. 28, and subsequent accords of Oct. 4 concerning Poland and the Russian and German spheres of influence in Poland.

Meanwhile, in the continuation of the war at sea, neutral vessels were warned they would risk being sunk if escorted by British or French warships.

WARNING RECEIVED
Washington (P)—The German warning against French or British convoys for neutral ships, including those of the United States, was delivered to the United States government several weeks ago.

Officials said today that was one of the cautions intended by the Berlin government when it advised Washington that American vessels should avoid "suspicious behavior" when sailing near France and Britain.

"Suspicious behavior" was interpreted here as meaning traveling under convoy, zig-zagging or sailing without lights.

The fact Germany had warned neutrals that their vessels under British or French escort would be sunk was published today in Berlin.

Northern Europe Still Is Worried Observers Believe Hitler May Act; Struggle Not Ended

Stockholm (P)—Rumors of German demands to express belief today that the northern countries would be dangerously optimistic if they assumed Adolf Hitler would let Soviet Russia issue all the invitations in the Baltic.

A sour witticism in Stockholm just now, in the wake of the conference of rulers of Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland was: "We shall soon know whether we Swedes are Germans or Russians."

The conference ended yesterday with a joint statement of the four nations' unity, but no specific mention was made of the Russian demands on Finland which prompted Sweden's King Gustaf to call the meeting.

Indications were that the struggle to preserve northern neutrality and national integrity had just begun.

Rumors of possible German demands on Norway, Denmark and Sweden were not confirmed, but aloofness of official Berlin to the fate of Finland led to speculation.

The Swedes, Danes and Norwegians, as well as Finns, remember, that Finland's independence was won in 1918 with the help of German troops, and that German governments, including that of Hitler, have looked with almost parental pride on Finland.

If Hitler now should give Russia a free hand in Finland, they wondered how much restraint he himself might exercise toward other northern countries.

'Murder Agreement' Is Alleged by Newspaper

New York (P)—The New York Sun says a reciprocal "murder trade agreement" between New York and Philadelphia gunmen has been in operation for the last year and that trigger-men from Philadelphia were responsible for at least three slayings in connection with the racket-busting investigations of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

Martin Seeks to Force Zimmerman To Publish Bill

Acts at Heil Request on Partly Vetoed Age Pension Measure

Madison — (P) — Governor Heil signed the $5,000,000 relief bill today, but eliminated by partial veto that section which guaranteed counties the state would pay them at least 10 per cent of their total relief expenditures.

He also used the tax partly on a $1,500,000 omnibus appropriations bill, wiping out a proposed increase of $1,075,000 in state aid for dependent children and making various other changes. He left in the bill around $400,000 of miscellaneous appropriations made out of revolving funds and lapsed balances.

By his partial vetoes the governor placed the relief and appropriation measures in the same category with the old age pension bill which he also disapproved in part through eliminating a $3,500,000 increase in pension allotments to counties.

Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman challenged the governor's right to sign only parts of a bill after the legislature adjourned and refused to publish the pension measure. The chief executive authorized a court action to compel him to do so.

Explains Stand

Heil said he signed the $5,000,000 relief measure because it gave control of the fund to the emergency board which can release the money to counties as it deems advisable.

Again addressing himself to the citizens of the state he said:

"I sincerely hope and expect it will not be necessary to spend this amount for general state relief."

"I have vetoed that part which provides for the payment of 10 per cent of all relief costs to all counties or other individual local units administering relief . . . as this would be a mandatory measure and definitely require the payment of this amount."

Madison — (P) — Acting at the request of Governor Heil, Attorney General John E. Martin planned immediate court action today to compel Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman to publish the partly vetoed old age pension bill—a step which may decide whether the legislature will be called back in special session.

While Governor Heil has definitely committed himself against a special session if it can be avoided, it was not known what he would do if the supreme court held his power of partial veto over appropriation bills could not be exercised after adjournment of the regular session.

The chief executive disapproved those sections of the pension bill providing for a $3,500,000 increase in budget appropriations but left standing the provisions making the state law conform with federal regulations.

Zimmerman declined to publish the bill on the ground the governor's partial veto ended the legislature adjourned. The attorney general's office will ask the supreme court to take original jurisdiction in a mandamus action against Zimmerman.

Criticizes Zimmerman

Heil criticized the secretary of state for the stand he took.

"In my opinion it is not within the province of the secretary of state to rule upon the constitutionality of any bills or laws," the governor said. "These are matters for the courts to decide and I have abounding faith in the courts to decide this matter upon its merits."

"Insofar as the legal aspects of the matter are concerned, however, these are not as important as the effects of delay upon the aged persons of the state who are entitled to benefits under the pension law. It is deplorable that they must be inconvenienced by the secretary of state's action."

Court Ruling Needed

The supreme court would have to decide whether the pension bill should become law with the appropriations included, whether it could be published without the appropriations, or whether it had been nullified completely. If the bill failed there would be a question whether Wisconsin would be eligible for a full share of federal aid.

The governor said he wanted to delay a special session at least until

Selection of Judge For Kuhn Trial Has Not Yet Been Made

Selection of a circuit court judge to try the case in which Mike Kuhn, Nichols, is charged with second degree murder in the death of Frank Plackham, town of Black Creek, has not yet been made. Kuhn recently filed an affidavit of prejudice in circuit court of Judge Edgar V. Werner and further action in the case was deferred pending the naming of another judge by the chairman of the board of circuit judges.

Plackham died following an altercation in Kuhn's tavern. He was found lying on the tavern floor and Kuhn, the tavernkeeper, was accused of beating him.

In authoritative comment there held that this was "according to internationally recognized laws of warfare."

American ships, officials here explained, have been moving in accordance with the principles set forth in the German warning.

They are not accepting convoy; they are not zig-zagging; at night they sail with lights ablaze and their American flag illuminated by special floodlights.

IGNORED IN MOSCOW

Moscow — (P) — The newly concluded British-French-Turkish treaty was all but ignored today by the Moscow press, which limited comment to a warning against any attempt "to make a bloc against soviet Russia" or to exclude her from settlement of important European problems.

In an article in the twentieth anniversary of fighting against the white (anti-bolshevik) Russians, the communist party newspaper Pravda said that recent treaties between Russia and Germany on one hand and Russia and Baltic states on the other had greatly strengthened Russia's position in world affairs.

"Now it is impossible to decide whether international questions without the participation of the soviet union," Pravda said. "All attempts to try to go around the Soviet union in deciding international questions or to make a bloc against the U. S. S. R. will fail."

At the same time the press announced in two lines Turkey's pact with Britain and France. It reported the courtesy exchange of telegrams between Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and the Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu "confirming the existence of friendly relations" between the two countries.

The presidium of the supreme soviet ratified the new frontier and friendship treaty with Germany dealing with the partition of Poland, including maps outlining the partition.

ROME IS CALM

Rome — (P) — Diplomatic quarters today interpreted an outward calmness in Rome toward the British-French-Turkish mutual assistance pact as further evidence of Italy's determination to remain outside the European war.

This calm contrasted sharply with violent attacks last summer when the pact was in the formative stage. The treaty made Turkey a potential enemy in event of Italian military aid to Germany. It was suggested in some circles that Britain might take advantage of the situation to promote better relations between Italy and Turkey.

til spring and perhaps do without one entirely. His financial advisers are making a close study of budget and revenue problems.

Meanwhile Nov. 27 has been set as a tentative date for the first meeting of an 18-member interim legislative committee appointed to draft plans for solving the state's $20,000,000 budget deficit.

When the committee was created it was assumed a special session would be necessary, but Heil was hoping normal tax yields would be much higher than expected.

Vernon Thomson (R) Richland center, speaker of the assembly, said the Nov. 27 date had been suggested by Senator Harry Bolter (D) Port Washington. Both are members of the committee.

marks are a very poor alibi for his failure to submit a program to the legislature."

Assemblyman Leo T. Niemuth (R) Oshkosh: "Heil has made so many statements in speeches and then contradicted them later that it is hard to know what to say or think. I think he means well, but he talks without thinking."

Assemblyman Mark Catlin, Jr. (R) Appleton: "Oh hell!"

Assemblyman Martin Herzog (P) Sturtevant (Racine county): "The majority of the legislators were of the type that wouldn't be influenced by lobbyists. Of course, there were some honest ones, too."

"Assemblyman Edwin J. Larson (R) Plymouth: 'Members of the legislature are not influenced to any extent by lobbyists. They are perfectly capable of forming their own opinions and depend largely on constituents to guide them in legislative matters.'

Ignored 'Real Issue'

Assemblyman Laurie E. Carlson (P) Bayfield county: "In the absence of any concrete fiscal program the governor attempts to divert attention from the real issue. After 10 months of floundering without any leadership, his charges are absurd as far as I have seen."

Assemblyman Harry Van Guilder (P) Ashland county: "I resent the governor's statement and believe he might have been more specific instead of involving us all. If there were any wild parties, I knew nothing about them. I had heard of some things that went on after hours that were not just right but know nothing about them. The governor attended the same banquets I did and there was no wine, women or song at any of them."

Assemblyman B. M. Engelbrecht (R) Beloit: "The governor's statement is too silly to merit any comment. There may be individual cases falling in the range of the governor's criticism but, when he applied it to the legislature as a whole, or even any considerable part of it, he is entirely unfair."

'Charges Ridiculous'

Assemblyman Paul Alfonsi (P) Pence: "Those who know the governor intimately would remind him of the biblical quotation: 'Let him who is without sin throw the first stone.' The governor, realizing and recognizing the dismal failure of his administration, looks about desperately for alibis. His charges are ridiculous and an insult to the scores of legislators who have devoted months of their time seeking an amiable solution of the state's problems."

Assemblyman O. R. Rice (R) Del-man (R) Edgerton: "My fellow assemblymen of the present session were the cleanest, most independent and right thinking bunch of assemblymen I have seen in my four terms in the legislature."

Assemblyman O. R. Rice (R) Delavan: "The statement . . . is too absurd to require any denial were it not for the fact that such statements are grossly unfair and not applicable to a great majority of the legislators who labored diligently for nine months trying to bring about legislation beneficial to the best interests of the taxpayers of Wisconsin."

Assemblyman Andrew Biemiller (P) Milwaukee: "The governor's secretariat were the only lobbyists I know of that were engaged in night work. Their favorite occupation was to keep Republican legislators awake until the wee small hours trying to pummel them into voting for such nefarious legislation as the reorganization of the public service commission."

Would Ban Lobbyists

Assemblyman James C. Hanson (P) Deerfield: "I didn't see any wine or women in the past legislature. There was not as much booze as in the previous legislatures. The only trouble was that they should have barred lobbyists who were the greatest obstacle to passing laws in the last session."

State Senator Otto Mueller (R) Wausau: "Some of that went on, no doubt. But just how much nobody knows. I didn't see any of it."

State Senator George Hampel (P) Milwaukee: "What's the use of even commenting on such a silly assertion?"

Assemblyman John Dittbender (P) Marathon county: I saw nothing like that going on. There were several women lobbying for different measures, but I wouldn't go so far as Governor Heil has gone. I don't think he should speak that way. If he had given us a program to work on, we would have worked on it."

State Senator Conrad Shearer (R) Kenosha: "If Governor Heil has any proof as to the lure of wine, women and song affecting legislation he should clear the atmosphere by being specific. No influence of that nature was used upon me and I have no knowledge of pressure of that kind being exerted upon any of my colleagues."

Assemblyman Frank N. Graess (R) Sturgeon Bay: "We all understand Julius and know how he expresses himself. However, if his statement is true, I sure missed out on the revelry and debauchery."

Anglo-French-Turkish Pact Is Hailed as Victory Over Nazis; Watch Effect on Italy

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (P) — The signing of the momentous Anglo-French-Turkish mutual-aid pact is hailed in the allied capitals as a great victory over Germany, being calculated to assure them domination in the vital eastern Mediterranean area.

Berlin naturally declines to subscribe to this view, but the German political world is called stunned.

Neutral observers agree that the pact on the face of it represents a powerful allied gain, but the agreement is so far reaching that the full implications must await developments.

The effect on Italy is being watched closely. The Italian press has adopted an attitude of indifference, pending a chance to study the situation.

That there can be no real indifference to a matter which so deeply affects Italian interests in the Mediterranean is obvious, foreign diplomats in Rome express belief that Italy will take no action, but will continue her neutrality.

Italy Support Fades

Should this prove to be the case indefinitely, it would mean that Germany had lost the hope of 500 active assistance from her ally. The threat of Italian military intervention on Germany's side has been held out by nazidom recently.

Coinciding with this striking Turkish-allied move, the nazis appeared to be quietly pursuing their search for peace in which surely must be the most extraordinary war of its kind in history, in so far as relates to hostilities in the western theater.

The conference of Scandinavian countries adjourned without initiating any peace move. There were two other highly-interesting developments, however.

One had to do with Herr Hitler's decree annexing conquered Polish provinces. He left dangling in the air for final disposal close to 50,000 square miles of what was the heart of Poland. Germany is occupying this zone right up to the Russian frontier.

Many observers are wondering if Herr Hitler intends to offer this for a new Polish state in an effort to appease the allies and thus end the war.

Stop At Frontier

At the same time the German high command, in announcing withdrawal of the French from German soil in the west, emphasized that the nazis troops which reoccupied this area stopped at the French frontier. That is, they didn't venture to trespass on French ground.

This was a new way of telling France that the reich has no quarrel with her. One heard the belief expressed in Berlin that reserve in handling the western campaign would mean more than a fresh peace offer.

The purpose, of course, is to inspire either the Anglo-French allies or neutrals to make another overture for a cessation of hostilities. Nazi officials have indicated that

Glenn Frank in Warning to U.S.

Says Entrance Into War Would Wreck Democratic Processes

Chicago — (P) — Dr. Glenn Frank said last night democratic processes would disappear if the nation went into the European war.

The former president of the University of Wisconsin and current chairman of the Republican party program committee spoke at a forum dinner sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"Our entering this war," he said, "would mean that we could not get back to a normal American life for a generation after it ended, and there is the definite possibility that our economic and political system would be wrecked."

United States' participation in the war, he added, would not assure the ultimate attainment of "a permanently safe or more rationally organized world."

Powdered Skim Milk Bill Killed by Heil

Madison — (P) — Governor Heil yesterday vetoed a bill legalizing sale of powdered skim milk in containers.

The governor said it was the intention of the state to promote the sale of whole milk now offered in powdered form in containers and although the proposed bill called for labeling of the product persons desiring whole milk might buy skim milk without knowing it.

eral explosion might result from a Russian march into Bessarabia; a Bulgarian attempt to wrest territorial claims from Rumania or Greece; or a move by Germany, Italy, Hungary or any other nation to make a thrust into the Balkans.

(In Bulgaria, the cabinet of Premier George Kiosevanoff resigned as the nation moved more troops to the Turkish and Rumanian frontiers.)

Diplomatic Comeback

Members of parliament, who loudly cheered Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's announcement that the pact had been signed, acclaimed it as a comeback for British diplomacy after what, in Chamberlain's words, was the "bombshell" thrown into the allied camp by the Russian-German non-aggression pact Aug. 24.

Americans Showing Increasing Sentiment for Keeping Out of War, Even if Allies are Losing

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—The number of American voters who think the United States should take up arms against Germany if the Allies appear to be losing the war has decreased sharply since the early days of hostilities. The first week of the war more than two voters in every five in an American Institute of Public Opinion survey thought America should declare war on the Nazis if the Allies were being defeated. Today, only one in four think so.

The decline is shown in fact-finding surveys conducted six weeks apart on the same question. A carefully selected cross-section of voters was asked:

"If it appears that Germany is defeating England and France, should the United States declare war on Germany and send our army and navy to Europe to fight?"

	Yes	No
First Week of War	44%	56%
Today	29	71

The decline is not due to any decrease in American sympathy for the Allied cause, for the overwhelming majority of voters in Institute surveys want the Allies to win and are willing to give them every aid short of actual armed intervention. The decline is, rather, another indication of the growing intense desire on the part of the public to avoid shedding American blood on the battlefields of Europe.

At the outbreak of war, Institute surveys found a small number of voters—16 per cent—who wanted to send an army and navy abroad to fight Germany at that time, without waiting to see how successful the Allies might be. There is still a small group of voters who favor immediate participation, but the number has declined to 5 per cent.

Thus it appears that war sentiment at the present time ranges from 5 per cent—the number who want to fight Germany now—to 29 per cent—the number who would declare war on Germany only if the Allies appear to be losing. The remainder, an overwhelming majority, are for staying out no matter what happens.

A special feature of the survey was a measurement of intensity of sentiment. The field interviewers for the American Institute kept a record of how strongly convinced each voter seemed in replying to the survey question. The results show a stronger degree of conviction among those who want to stay out of war than among those who want to go in if the Allies are losing. Strongly in Favor of Going in 13%, Mildly in Favor of Going in 16%, Strongly Opposed to Going in 46%, Mildly Opposed to Going in 25% (Copyright, 1939)

Grew's Speech to Japanese Made on Orders From Home

Instructed by President or Secretary of State, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The United States government has begun a determined effort to improve America's relations with Japan. This explains the forthright, and, in many respects, sensational speech made by Ambassador Joseph Grew in Tokyo within the last 24 hours.

It is very unusual for a career diplomat like Mr. Grew to make a forceful speech, and the fact that he has made it means only that he was instructed to do so by either the president of the United States or the secretary of state or both.

Mr. Grew recently spent considerable time in Washington and had an opportunity to go over in detail the whole Japanese-American situation. He became so familiar with the point of view of the president and Secretary Hull that it was unnecessary for him to submit his speech in advance. He was given the widest discretion in the use of words and phrases, for he has been so long in Tokyo that he alone would know what would or would not impress the Japanese. Likewise, the Japanese know that the president and Mr. Grew are old personal friends and that in such an intimacy of a personal as well as a governmental nature lies mutual confidence.

Series of Speeches
What is significant is that Mr. Grew announces he is to make a series of speeches and that he will talk "straight from the horse's mouth." Only rarely does any ambassador set for himself a program of speech-making concerning his diplomatic mission, but the move must have been decided upon because of a belief that Japanese public opinion is now aware of the pitiful facts which lie in a continuance of the present militaristic policy of the Japanese.

Clearly, in the troubled state of the world, the United States wants to cement if possible her relations with Japan. This could not be done with Japan tied up to an aggressor combination of states, nor can it be done now if aggression is to be Japan's method of expansion.

The United States government feels that the key to Japan's future as well as to peace in the far east lies in a resumption of the "open door" policy, which was initiated under the Republican administration of President McKinley when John Hay was secretary of state and which has been supported uniformly by Democratic secretaries of state ever since.

The Grew address is timed to coincide with the changes in the world situation, and, while there is nothing in the address which implies threats or even veiled threats of a grave nature, it cannot be denied that the point which the president wants to get over to the Japanese is that America cannot develop a real relationship with Japan unless certain alterations are made in present policies and unless some way is found to change the whole face of affairs in the far east.

In Position to Help
America, as a close friend of China and of Japan, is in a position to bring to an end the long war that has been in progress, or at least to lay the foundations for a peace settlement which will permit normal trade to be resumed. But if Japan thinks that Britain or France or Holland or any of the other powers interested in the far east will forego equal commercial opportunity as established by past treaties, then a frank statement of the futility of such a course may tend to prevent misunderstandings in the future.

What America is trying to do unquestionably through the tactics of frank expression is to reaffirm her past position, as expressed in notes and diplomatic communications, but, at the same time, to urge in as polite and friendly a way as possible that the civilian elements in the Japanese government give renewed consideration to the dangers of a foreign policy which drives Japan farther and farther away from her natural friends in the Pacific.

The president's experiment of speaking publicly through an ambassador who is as careful as he is intelligent may or may not succeed, but it comports with the highest traditions of American foreign policy—to deal straight across the table with the facts and trust to the good sense and sincerity of the Japanese government to see that more is to be gained now by bringing about a settlement of the friction in the far east than by letting it drag along from episode to episode and from incident to incident whilst economic and trade problems accumulate.

COWBOYS VS. TURKEYS

Austin, Tex. —(P)— Out in those parts of the west where cowboys now ride herd on huge flocks of turkeys, instead of cattle, the problem arises of what to do about birds that don't come home to roost at night.

Leon Alexander, Mason county farmer, has solved it. His turkeys frequently range out in the brush and try to roost there. They are easy prey for coyotes.

So Alexander placed a goat with the flock and the goat has become so attached to the turkeys he never leaves them. Whenever Alexander calls the goat, the animal bleats and Alexander knows the location of his turkeys.

Amendments Open Way to New Debates on Neutrality Law

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Officially, party politics has been adjourned for the period of the neutrality debate and it must be said that the senators are heroically keeping the pledge. Republican senators like Taft of Ohio and Austin of Vermont are working for the administration while Democrats like Wheeler of Montana, Holt of West Virginia and the two Clarks, of Missouri and Idaho, are working against it.

But senators find it difficult to break long established habits. Thus you find that Democrats exclude the Republicans from conferences among members of the foreign relations committee where the shipping section of the neutrality bill is being revised. The administration group goes further. It is excluding one of the Democratic members of the committee, Bennett Clark of Missouri, because he is opposed to the administration bill.

In these conferences, the "carry" section of the bill is being redrafted to ease the restrictions on American shipping. This is a vital section of the bill and the one which requires the most exacting attention. Powerful pressure has been brought to nullify the provision entirely, either outright or by joker, so that American ships can engage in war trade with belligerents. On the other hand, practically everyone recognizes that the original draft was too severe, and strong sentiment exists for exempting American shipping in the Pacific and other areas reasonably safe from danger. There also is a desire to prohibit such exempted shipping from carrying arms and ammunition, thus in effect retaining the arms embargo for American shipping but repealing it for non-American shipping.

In part, these suggested changes constitute concessions to the isolationists. Yet one of the leading isolationists, Hiram Johnson of California, who has been assigned to make the closing argument, is excluded from these discussions because he is a Republican, although as a California senator he has the greatest interest in provisions made for shipping on the Pacific. At the same time his former fellow senator, William G. McAdoo, has been working around town, from the White House on down, to obtain concessions for Pacific coast shipping.

Thus senators, regardless of party, who do not happen to support the administration on the arms embargo are fenced out of the conference. The plan is to present them with the completed draft of the revision on the senate floor.

Isolationists Want to Continue Arguments

These tactics are causing some feeling among isolationist senators. Furthermore, they invite the administration side to prolong the debate. Some of the isolationists are looking for new legitimate excuses to continue the discussion. They have about shot their bolt. Only two or three more senators are scheduled to speak for the opposition, and they need a new lease on life. They don't want to stage an open filibuster but they want to stretch out the debate.

Senator Holt, in his long speech this week, paused frequently to recognize friendly senators for interruptions. Rising to ask a question, these senators, such as Reynolds of North Carolina, would swing into little speeches of their own, during which time Holt was able to rest his voice, and take a little nourishment, such as milk brought up from the senate restaurant. Once Senator Bennett Clark interrupted to ask for a quorum call which allowed Holt to sit down for a few minutes of rest. These are the old tricks of the concealed

THE GOVERNOR OF REVERSIA

Wisconsin's sparkling governor declared at Wisconsin Rapids on Wednesday last that the legislative session was frustrated by "the lure of wine, women and song" and then he urged the passing of a law to "do away with the night work of lobbyists, both men and women, in Madison hotels." Wouldn't it be more direct and helpful to simply do away with the "wine, women and song?"

Mr. Heil is in a hard corner. That is evident because he says that the newspapers are not treating him on the level and he indicates that they are dishonest because "they have to sell papers and can't tell the truth." Most of them are likely to sell papers because people believe they tell the truth. The history of American papers reveals a steady decline of those that have ever hooked up to political machines whereby the people became convinced they might not be telling the truth.

Of course what is the truth depends upon whether you are in Wisconsin or Reversia. If a Wisconsin newspaper points to our versatile governor's syrupy promises and then points to the record it doesn't even have to say that there has been practically no semblance of a kept promise. But in Reversia Mr. Heil's record would be exquisite in its beauty. There, when a man says he's going to reduce the budget by about 15 million dollars he has kept his promise unless he increases it by over 30 millions.

The only mistake the newspapers made was to think they were in Wisconsin instead of Reversia.

THE STRONG DIE THAT THE WEAK MAY LIVE

"Courage, an independent spark from Heaven's bright throne
By which the soul stands raised, triumphant, high, alone,
Courage, the mighty attribute of powers above,
By which those great in war are great in love,
The spring of all brave acts is seated here,
As falsehoods draw their sordid birth from fear."

To the credit of Winston Churchill, first lord of Britain's admiralty, high tribute was paid the U-boat commander who raided Scapa Flow as having directed "a remarkable exploit of professional skill and daring."

Safely back on German soil the blond young fellow who bearded the lion in his den, 31-year-old Guenther Prien, detailed in steady words his adventure, one so risky and seemingly impossible it had never even been dared in the previous war.

Here certainly was an evidence of supreme confidence and valor, a U-boat directed by nerves of cold steel in the bodies of strong-limbed, straight-eyed, young men, perfectly willing to accept the destruction that seemed sure in order to perform a service that had been classified as duty.

But if the war continues the public after a time will become dulled by repeated acts of this sort on each side and even valor that would almost raise the dead will pass with little more than fleeting notice.

Perhaps it is about time for someone to figure up the consequences when the best in our breeds are sent forth to die and the race is deprived of its fit and strongest.

In World War No. 1 a U-boat made an average of six trips only before it was sent to destruction. The bottom of the North Sea is literally studded with these steel crates that are now eternal tombs for their crews. Commander Prien had his little day of glory at Berlin when he was decorated by the Fuehrer. He probably will also receive a 10-day leave. And then he will go back to the howling call of annihilation. The chances of his living through a war of ordinary length are so few they may be dismissed as unworthy of consideration.

What effect upon Europe, upon the world for that matter, was the destruction of the near 10 million men who were killed at the front in the last war?

Armies that are carefully constructed eliminate the weak, the unsteady, the flighty, the scary, and assign them to positions suitable to their makeup, but generally out of hearing of the thunder of the guns, away from the terrible gleam of the bayonets. Thus those destroyed are the most physically, mentally and nervously fit among the population. They go forth to die while the weak, the halt, the blind, the palsied, the morbid, the squeamish and the fearsome stay at home to breed.

It is a question worth more than mere speculation or wonderment, even if the answer must remain largely conjectural, what war has really done to the human race by destroying, year after year, century after century, the fit, the best, the strongest, the most dependable.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT

The nightmare of every army commander is a flank movement. Nothing will send panic through an army like attack from more than one direction at the same time.

It is evident on the western front, however, that the left flank of the French army is no longer exposed to the lightning thrust that the Germans delivered at the outset of the previous world war by the swift march through Belgium.

Twenty-five years ago the air was ringing with the name of von Kluck because that general's forces had been marched through the Maasticht gap which, providentially for France, exists no longer. Built directly across it there now stands a formidable artificial waterway. The Albert Canal is not only a course for commerce but was constructed by the Belgians as an astute defense. At many points its banks reach from 100 to 200 feet above the countryside. Opening its spillways would swamp any army.

However desperate the German leaders become can they become desperate enough to try to turn France's left flank by either an operation through Belgium or Holland under the circumstances?

So far as the right flank is concerned the situation looks even more uninviting for an attacker. In World War No. 1 the Germans discarded any attempt to turn the French right flank along the Swiss border because the gateways there were too narrow, the walls around them too high, threatening and formidable.

Although the German fortifications held the French army while Poland was subdued will not the French fortifications, therefore, withstand any German attack now that its army is looser, has a war upon its hands, its pantry is becoming thinner and time is considered its greatest enemy?

Certainly from appearances Hitler's task is extremely heavy. These same appearances pretty well force the conclusion that a war of attrition is at hand and yet that the expense in blood will not approach the previous World War since battles involving millions are not contemplated because apparently impractical.

In such a war it is customary to say that "the best nerves win." But nerves are nourished by vitamins. And vitamins are still found in food.

BITING THE HAND

The Ford plant has excluded 40 Russian engineers and their interpreters who as visitors to this country had been taking a course in production methods at the River Rouge plant for some time. In fact Russia has been sending engineers to that plant for nearly ten years.

Ford says that these visitors actively participated in Communist enterprises in Detroit and offered bribes up to $1200 a month to plant officials to deliver certain secret information to them.

The Ford Company has been about as soft-headed concerning Reds as the President of the United States. Both have been dupes. Each has assumed that kind treatment, open-handed generosity and toleration would breed like qualities in return.

That idea is true enough when employed with those who have evidenced sufficient development of heart, mind and spirit to indicate ordered reasoning. But the orientals who predominate in Russia look upon treachery as a fine human achievement and a stealthy and successful stab in the back the accomplishment of the highest ambition.

When Mr. Ford first started this practice with Russia the Post-Crescent complained. It appeared to us that it was not good sense for America to develop marvelous inventions and teach crude peoples the way. But since we have been reading the unbiased story of American correspondents who watched the Russian army flow over Poland without objection and declared their astonishment at seeing more broken down and workless army machinery scattered along every mile of the road than was evidenced by the entire German advance farther west, and this after 22 years of the blissful communist state, we may conclude that the typical Russian is beyond learning, or that the Soviet state is beyond teaching.

A WALL OF LIGHT

Firmly against the blackness of the night,
There stands a wall of light.

We cannot miss the dawn although the dark
Holds no revealing spark.

Light will endure beyond the bomb's dread
smoke,
The tyrant's fateful yoke.

The fearful night will pass, the darkness be
Only a memory.

Patience and Faith will bring our eager sight
To Morning's wall of light.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Broadway has an ambassador. Maybe ambassador is too fancy a word. Maybe speller or Barker would be more fitting. Whatever his designation, Charlie Washburn has gone on the road to sell Broadway to America.

Mr. Washburn is one of that numerous company of ex-Chicagoans who give New York whatever flare for showmanship it has. For years he has been one of the best known theatrical press agents. He represented George M. Cohan a long time. He has been the press representative of numerous Broadway hits. He has toured the country often ahead of road shows.

If we wanted to be fussy about details it would be necessary to explain that Charlie has been sent on a farflung tour to spread the particular glories of the International Casino, Broadway's largest theatre-restaurant; but even his bosses there realize that the job Charlie is called upon to do is to stress the Street itself. Alex Finn, the Bostonian who operates the Casino, was himself once an outdoor showman. His argument is that whatever helps Broadway will help him also. He therefore commissioned Charlie Washburn to go out and rekindle American cupidity about the most famous street in the world.

"Let's make every night New Year's eve," is the somewhat ambitious goal Alex Finn has set for Broadway. Washburn, who has press agent everything from a glass house at a county fair to Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne—and who also authored an authentic, privately circulated biography of Chicago's notorious whoop-la merchants, the Everleigh Sisters—was chosen Broadway's ambassador because of his wide acquaintance among newspapermen. There is hardly a drama critic between here and Sioux City he doesn't know.

"The trouble with the World's Fair," said Alex Finn, "was that it lacked glad-handing at the beginning. That's why we're sending Charlie out to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Madison, St. Louis, Milwaukee and other cities. We want him to let the boys out there know Broadway has come to life—that Broadway is gay, and fast, and happy."

Many newspapermen are to be invited by Charlie to come to town and have a see for themselves. It looks like the most constructive bit of highway ballyhoo since bands began playing the Beale Street Blues and the Twelfth Street Rag. If it works, maybe somebody will hire a press agent for U. S. Route No. 1.

In Europe, they say, the idea of Rehearsal Dinners is not new, but I never heard of one until the other night, and it was a honey. A rehearsal dinner is sort of a sneak preview to a banquet. The host, planning a big affair, invites a few gourmets in a week ahead, serves them a meal such as he contemplates serving at the banquet, and gets their opinions.

In this particular case a few of us were invited by Lucius Boomer, president of the Waldorf-Astoria, and Alfred I. Barton, Member of the Committee of One Hundred of Miami Beach, Fla., to preview the dinner which was to be served a week later to the Committee of One Hundred and their guests—about 800 people. Your mouth should water freely as I recite what we had to go through.

There were cocktails and a variety of appetizers before we sat down—truffles like caviar and cold turkey and fine old sherry. Then came the dinner itself. First were Miami Beach crabs—rare delicacies for New Yorkers. These were followed by a special for the Rehearsal Dinner. There were two soups, both full portions. One was clear green turtle, the other was a green turtle cream soup. The jurors were to make their choice, and whichever was chosen was to be served at the banquet the following week. Both were out-of-this-world, but the clear soup won by a close vote when some thoughtful gentlemen suggested that women, always conscious of waistlines, would feel more kindly toward it—not gastronomically but symmetrically.

There was a double fish course—Florida pompano meuniere and also on Papillote. The vote went to the meuniere, the gourmets feeling that pompano is too soft a fish to be served on Papillote. The next course was breast of native guinea hen which Bugs Baer, who was a fellow authority, said was the finest he had ever eaten. Served with the hen were guava jelly, peas and buttered samp, the latter being a croquetish business I did not bother to eat, being by that time well a-bulge. After that came two kinds of cold ham—Virginia and Kentucky. The gourmets chose Kentucky on the argument that its flavor better fitted the other courses. For dessert were two ice creams—coconut and kumquat—both served in coconut shells from which the meat had been removed. Kumquat won the nod, with the suggestion that it should be served in shells from which the coconut meat had not been taken. For finale came café d'able—(why can't Louella concoct a beverage like that?)—some 1865 cognac and cigars; and I want to know that after all this—a double dinner—superluxe—I awoke the next morning feeling no miseries whatsoever.

Looking Backward
25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Oct. 17, 1914

George C. Jones, one of Appleton's most philanthropic citizens, died at his home, 880 Prospect street, the previous evening. He was 85 years old. He was president of the library board from the time of its organization and a bank commissioner.

The Elks bowling alleys had been completed and were to be opened for use the following afternoon. Bowlers said the $1,600 addition was the most complete in the city.

The German cruiser Karlsruhe sunk 13 British merchantmen in the Atlantic. French warships were assisting the British monitors in shelling the Germans between Ostend and Newport. On the left wing the Germans continued a violent attack in the region between the sea and the Canal of Labosse.

Farmers in the vicinity of Mackville that day started hauling their sugar beets to the railroad for shipment to the Menominee River Sugar company plant at Green Bay. The crop was not heavy.

The ninth district conference of the American Legion auxiliary was held Thursday at the Methodist Episcopal church with 160 delegates and visitors in attendance. Mrs. Don Mathewson, Hortonville, district president, presided.

Alfred W. Swicky, 316 Waupaca street, Waupaca, had accepted an appointment as a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve corps, it was announced by the war department.

JAPAN TO HOUSE 100,000
Plans for housing 100,000 laborers have been worked out by the Welfare Ministry at Tokyo. Instructions have been issued to the authorities of the various prefectures where the housing shortage among factory workers is greatest regarding the kinds of houses to be built. The program calls for 30,000 small houses for married men and 200 dormitories each accommodating 200 single persons. It is expected that this will take care of about one-fifth of the 500,000 who will need to be housed as a result of the labor mobilization program. The shortage of building supplies is the main reason why the program is not more extensive. Firms employing the inadequately housed workers will be urged to construct houses for their men, with assurances of building subsidies.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Britain's air-raid protection is fairly well worked out. If the war doesn't end too soon there will be chances to test thoroughly home defense against air attack.

A fresh analysis of what's what in the air over England is made by Major General H. Rowan-Robinson of the British army in the U. S. Coast Artillery Journal.

He flies right in the face of many an amateur strategist who says the famous London fog is Albion's greatest protection.

Bad weather, says General Rowan-Robinson, is all to the advantage of the raiders. They escape observation. They can hide in the fog or clouds, and skim along the tree tops to get the best view of the objective.

Over London, the bombers' problem becomes more complex. The much discussed "balloon barrage" protects the city. Hundreds of balloons hang in the air, tied to the earth by stout but slender cables.

The balloons are kept just under the cloud bank that habitually hangs over London. A raiding plane coming down out of the clouds may hit one of the balloons and be incinerated by the explosion of hydrogen gas. If the raider dives under the balloon, the cables wreck his plane. If he flies just over them, the air artillery knows his exact elevation because the gunners know how high the balloons are and how high the clouds are. With elevations known in advance, anti-aircraft artillery is very dangerous.

Test Flights
The British tried out their system in practice. Comments General Rowan-Robinson:

"On the whole, results were distinctly disappointing to the defensive."

In the first 45 minutes of the mock war, the fleet of "enemy" planes made 11 raids. They averaged 100 raids a night over southern England during the four nights of the test. They made effective use of England's bad weather, of which she has a lot.

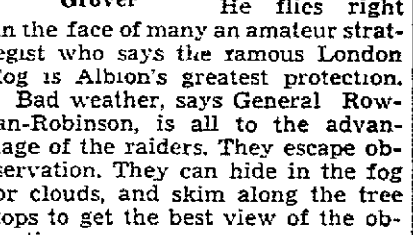

The defense had serious problems. At the time of the test, just before war was declared, Englishmen wouldn't take the air attack business seriously. They had enjoyed 900 years of freedom from fear of foreign invasion. In a "blackout" of London, many persons failed to dim their auto lights. Lighted train windows showed the line of railroads.

The general implies that one real raid will lessen the average Englishman's optimism about air safety.

The No. 1 Weapon
Searchlights hunting the planes had an unhappy faculty of reflecting on the water of the Thames, a dead giveaway. Additional precautions will help remedy that. Not yet remedied is how to dim the glare of factories that must work at night.

The general says the anti-aircraft guns worked well—in practice. Moreover, the numbers, quality, range and power of the guns are increasing. Home defense planes, too, got many a raider.

The most effective weapon against air raids could not get its effect at all. England expects that, the moment a German squadron comes over, her own raiding bombers will wing their way over Germany. That would compel some of the raiders to get back home promptly to protect the fatherland. Further, the English raiders have an advantage. They don't have to get home. They can land in France.

It's Odd But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York — A Noble prize is worth $50,000 and one of them is waiting for the person who can tell science the whole story of those orange and yellow "Christmas decorations" on cedar trees in a rainy early spring.

The bright objects are jelly-like balls that grow on the stems. From them issue forth the microscopic spores of the rusts which infect apple leaves and fruit.

A discovery that there are three distinct species of rusts on the cedar tree, and that all of them attack apples, is reported in the scientific journal, Phytopathology, by Paul R. Miller, graduate student of George Washington university.

The discovery is commercially important because it was formerly believed that the cedar trees carried only one kind of rust to attack apples and the attacks of all three occur all through the central and eastern United States.

The story that would be worth the $50,000 prize is why these rusts have to spend part of their time on cedar trees and part on apples. This is a necessity if the rusts are to live.

There is still another road to fame open to those who study the cedar's Christmas decorations. No one ever has been able to cultivate these rusts "in vitro," that is, artificially in a test tube. To do that would be worth a few minor science prizes.

There are four towns in the United States named Akron.

The accordion was invented in Vienna in 1829.

SATURDAY NIGHT

Under the Capitol Dome

(Editor's Note—During the absence of John W. Wyngaard, the Appleton Post-Crescent's Capitol correspondent now on vacation, his daily column will be written by men prominent in state government. The views expressed under the signatures of the writers are distinctly their own.)

BY ROY KUBISTA
Secretary, State Employees Union

Madison—A ten per cent reduction in state personnel has been suggested as an effective way to reduce the tax burden on the gainfully employed persons in the state of Wisconsin. By this suggestion every one of the gainfully employed individuals has been led to think of himself as a large contributor in taxes used for state purposes.

The fact, however, is that state taxes amount to about one-third of all taxes for all purposes collected in Wisconsin. The total of all taxes collected in Wisconsin for all units of government in 1938 was $186,764,938. The general property tax was 56.9 per cent of this total (a little over one-half).

Two-thirds of all the taxes collected in Wisconsin each year are for local governmental purposes. It is toward these taxes that the 1,129,000 gainfully employed contribute most heavily. It is hard to see how a reduction in state personnel will help to reduce the property tax, which is, after all, the heaviest single tax burden.

In fact, it is true that a reduction in state personnel leading to further unemployment may tend to increase the property tax, due to the fact that individuals without jobs may be forced to depend for support upon local charities in their home communities.

The average salary in state employment is approximately $100 per month which means that about one-half of the state's employees are receiving less than $100 per month. In practice a reduction of 10 per cent in state personnel would mean that those employees receiving less than $100 per month would be the first ones laid off. The saving in salaries, therefore, would be small and compared to other state costs, merely a drop in the bucket.

It can be assumed that all of the gainfully employed are contributing something in state taxes; however, only a small portion of their tax money goes for state purposes.

The only money received by the state from property taxes is a small tax of 2 of a mill, the proceeds of which go into the conservation fund for reforestation purposes in the northern counties. The total amount of this tax is 8 per cent of the general property tax collected in the state. As stated above, the other 99.2 per cent is used by local governments.

It should be pointed out to the 1,129,000 gainfully employed taxpayers who are contributing revenue through the various state taxes that by far the greatest amount spent out of the total tax income which accrues to the state goes directly back to the counties and local units of government in state aids or shared taxes, and does not go to pay state personnel.

The increase in state aids since 1902 has been phenomenal.

The greatest increase has been in the field of charitable aids. In 1900 the total amount paid in charitable aids was $270,000. In 1930 it was $1,440,000, and in 1938 the total had risen to $8,323,560.

The state returns money to the counties and localities for educational, charitable and highway purposes. State aids have been a means of reducing the general property tax burden in the localities. It is interesting to note that out of the state's 71 counties, only 12 contribute more in taxes to the state government than they receive back in state aids. In other words, 68 counties in the state actually receive more money from the state in the

DENTAL TREATMENT

Not later than the age of three years every child should be examined by the family dentist, who will remove any "green stains" or other discolorations and polish the teeth—all a pleasant experience. If any caries or decay of the teeth is present the dentist can apply a temporary filling quite painlessly, and that, too will please the child, so that the prospect of future visits to the dentist remains a pleasant one. Such early dental care, and recognition and correction of any defects in the formation of the temporary teeth will not only promote the development of good teeth but will prevent much unnecessary discomfort and expense later in childhood and youth. No longer can the conscientious parent dismiss the question of proper dental treatment for the young child on the foolish ground that the temporary teeth will be lost soon anyway. If decay of the temporary teeth is not promptly arrested, the permanent teeth will not last long either. The carious primary tooth should be filled, not extracted, for by keeping it in place until the permanent tooth is about to appear you enable natural growth and development to proceed normally, and that means the preservation of health and beauty.

More and more people today are undergoing voluntary health examinations from time to time, for the satisfaction of knowing just what their physical condition of health rating is and getting expert advice about keeping well or avoiding the particular hazards to which they may be susceptible. Such a health test or survey should invariably include a visit to the dentist for examination and any necessary dental treatment he or she advises.

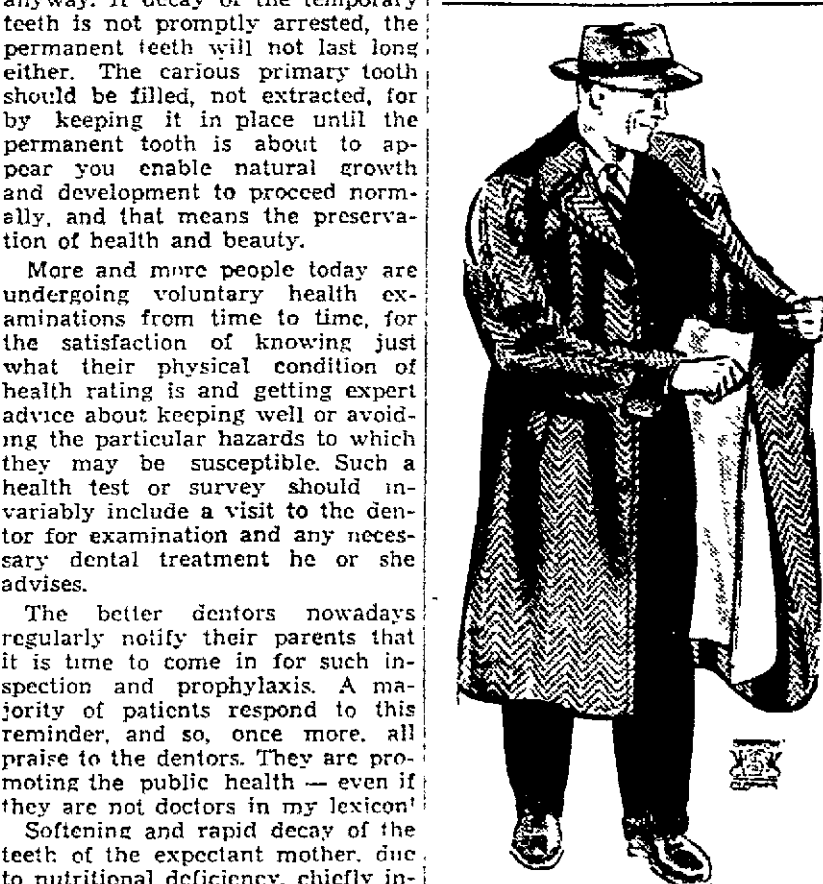

The better dentists nowadays regularly notify their patients that it is time to come in for such inspection and prophylaxis. A majority of patients respond to this reminder, and so, once more, all praise to the dentists. They are promoting the public health—even if they are not doctors in my lexicon!

Softening and rapid decay of the teeth of the expectant mother, due to nutritional deficiency, chiefly inadequate daily intake of calcium, phosphorus, vitamin D, C, A and B-complex may be controlled by correcting these deficiencies in the diet, but dental defects or decay already present must be properly treated by the dentist, no matter what stage of pregnancy. Of course the earlier the patient has her teeth put in order the better. But it is unjust to herself and unfair to the unborn baby to neglect such dental care for fear of some complication. Ordinary dental treatment such as scaling and polishing and filling cavities is as safe for the expectant mother as it is for any one else. If any operation requiring anesthesia is required, then the attendance of the physician and his advice should be requested.

Canada and the United States

There is no subject which it is more important to study carefully, none about which it is more necessary to think clearly and speak responsibly, than the relations between Canada and the United States.

Canada is our immediate neighbor across the longest unarmored frontier in the world. Canada is a small country, with 10,000,000 inhabitants as against our own 130,000,000. The Canadian people have essentially the same culture, the same system of law, the same political philosophy as the people of the United States, and their economic life is closely interwoven with our own.

Canadians are a free, self-governing, independent nation, allied with but in no sense of the word subject to the British government in the United Kingdom. They are not a British colony; their allegiance to the British crown comes from no compulsion that Great Britain can exert but from their own deliberate choice and free consent.

For more than a hundred years we have enjoyed the best possible relations with Canada: our common frontier, 3,000 miles long, is unfortified. Never at any time has this country had designs against Canada, never at any time has Canada seriously felt itself threatened by the United States. The fact that Canada is a part of the British Commonwealth has preserved the Canadian people against that feeling of inferiority, with its attendant fears and suspicions, that weak nations have in regard to powerful neighbors. The fears and suspicions that are so strong elsewhere in this hemisphere have been almost non-existent in Canada.

We, on the other hand, had learned to recognize that the connection between Canada and Great Britain, plus the unfortified frontier, constituted an absolute guaranty of peace between the British Empire and ourselves. With Canada providing an unmistakable pledge of British good behavior, no one in his sense could look upon the British possessions in this hemisphere as even a potential and theoretical menace to our own country.

It'll Be Difficult to Live Down the Speeches

In the past weeks our relations with Canada and with the rest of this hemisphere have been disturbed much more seriously than appears on the surface, more dangerously than most people in this country have yet realized. There has been Col. Lindbergh's speech, which, though this may not have been his intention, seems to say that Canada should dissociate herself from Great Britain as her guide, mentor, protector and suzerain. There has been the very crude speech of Senator Lundeen proposing that we undertake armed aggression against British and French colonial possessions. The people of this country may think these speeches are isolationist and neutral, and evidently the pacifist organizations who are circulating some of them are under this illusion. But everywhere else in this hemisphere and in the rest of the world, these speeches will be taken as a manifestation of American imperialism.

It will be hard for this country to live down those speeches: they will be remembered long after the people of this country have hoped they are forgotten. For the weak who live next to the strong have memories: they are disposed to fear the strong, and when they have been threatened as the British people in this hemisphere have been threatened, they tend to believe what their weakness has already prepared them to suspect.

This suspicion will haunt us, and it will poison in a degree that it will not be easy for us to remedy, the whole effort of this country to achieve a solidarity of peace and order in the Western Hemisphere. For let us have no illusions whatever about it. We are immeasurably the strongest power in this hemisphere, and the other peoples will never willingly accept our protection if they have reason to suspect that they must submit to our domination. How are they to know whether Col. Lindbergh's remarks are the unconsidered opinions of an inexperienced young man or whether they express the sentiments of a party which may win the next election? But surely they will in their hearts suspect the worst, especially since the rest of Col. Lindbergh's speech agrees so perfectly with the proposals of an important faction of his party.

Canada Destined To Be British Stronghold

We have then to recognize, I submit, that whatever the result of the war in Europe, Canada is destined to become a great, interior stronghold of the British system.

Once, Canada was a colonial outpost of the empire; then, it became a self-governing dominion; latterly, it has been an independent nation allied with the other British nations. Tomorrow, it will be an inner citadel, perhaps the inner citadel of the British world. For since the British Isles are no longer invulnerable to attack by sea and by air, since Canada has grown in industrial maturity, Canada will almost certainly be developed as a vital strategic base of the British power.

This will be one of the great changes of modern history. The change is proceeding rapidly under the pressure of the war, which demonstrates the vulnerability of the British Isles, and under the influence of such measures as the arms embargo, which demonstrate the danger to Britain of her dependence upon certain supplies from this country. Indeed, if the arms embargo is retained, the very existence of Great Britain may depend upon the development of Canadian industry. We must look forward, therefore, to seeing Canada become a strategic base rather than a mere distant outpost of Britain. Then, obviously, the wise conduct of our relations with Canada will become the paramount question in our foreign policy.

That question will not be disposed of, in fact it will be made totally insoluble, if we follow Col. Lindbergh and challenge Canada's right and her interest as a member of the British Commonwealth. Such a challenge must inevitably be interpreted as a threat to Canadian independence and as a threat of imperialism from the United States. Such a challenge can engender only the invincible suspicion of a weaker people against its stronger neighbor.

That is a dangerously bad atmosphere to create for the discussion of the great problem which is now arising because Britain and the United States are becoming so much more closely neighbors than they have ever been before. It is a problem, a momentous problem, perhaps in its consequences our greatest problem. It is delicate, difficult, and complex, and if there is any statesmanship in us, let us not begin by poisoning the atmosphere with suspicions like those which have made so tragically difficult an understanding across the political frontiers of Europe.

Time, Thought Necessary to Clarify Relationship

For these reasons we cannot dismiss the matter from our minds as a deplorable incident about which the least said the better. The suspicion which has been planted in the relations of this hemisphere can be eradicated only by full and free discussion which will clarify our true relationship to Canada, and to the British Commonwealth, and to the British colonial possessions, and to all the Latin nations who are within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine.

So that subscribers may become better acquainted with these young men, the Post-Crescent will present each one of them in picture and brief biographical sketch.)

RALPH STOJAKOVIC, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stojakovic, 124 S. Pierce avenue, is a Wilson Junior high school eighth grader, he's 14 years old. On the newspaper route, he aims at front porches from the 300 to 700 block on Eighth street.

His brother boxes, but Ralph isn't sure it would be fun. Likes to play football in the vacant lots. In those games, he plays "any position." In the summer it's swimming and in the winter skiing. Engages in sports "for the fun of it" and because of that is doubtful whether he'll go out for high school athletics. Has a dog named Fluffy, nationality somewhat confused. Fluffy is not a fighter, Ralph says, "just a good guy."

It would have been better if these great questions could have been discussed in a quieter time, in an atmosphere free of the hysteria of war. But we have no choice: against the spread of such imperialist ideas in this country and the repercussions among all our neighbors in this hemisphere, it is necessary now to erect a barrier of true and sound and responsible opinion.

That will take time and much serious thought. But we must begin. I submit, by recognizing as one of the great circumstances of our life, the fact that our nearest neighbor is a member of the British Commonwealth of nations. We may like or dislike this historic fact: we cannot change it. Indeed, were we to follow Col. Lindbergh by proposing that Canada separate from the British Commonwealth, we should instantly provide the Canadian people with the invincible reason why they must never separate from the British Commonwealth. For if Canada separated because we asked her to separate, Canada would become in fact, even if not in name, a protectorate of the United States. Being a nation of 10,000,000 to our 130, 000,000, the position of Canada would be like that of Cuba.

It follows that Canada will remain a member of the British Commonwealth, even more solidly a member in so far as opinions like those of Col. Lindbergh and Senator Lundeen are believed to be current in the United States.

3,000-Mile Frontier Offers Great Question

Let us instead recognize clearly, let us ponder calmly, let us discuss in a cool and generous spirit, the fact—the great historic fact—that in our own time, now before our eyes, our northern land frontier is becoming a frontier three thousand miles long between the United States and a Canada which is destined to be one of the main citadels of the British power.

A fact of that kind shapes the destiny of nations. For when a vital center of the British power is on one side of that frontier and the center of our own power is on this side of it, then for weal or for woe the fundamental policies of the two countries will be weighted with immeasurable consequences. For their policies will have either to remain parallel or reciprocal, or to become divergent and antagonistic.

This is the great question which is now already visible on the horizon, and the whole capacity of both nations for sober thought and responsible speech and statesmanship conduct will be needed to answer that question rightfully.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Don't think everyone is looking at you, they're not! Learn to think constructively to your own advantage.

Many of the great deeds that men have never accomplished, and much of the happiness never attained, can be justly attributed to timidity. Each of us has experienced a time when we might have done something important had we not been timid. A step we might have taken if we had had more self-confidence. And we let the opportunity slip right through our fingers and lived years to regret it. By so doing, we sacrificed a share of happiness which was rightfully due us, had we not been restrained through an undiminished fear.

The tougher specimen of woman can shrug her shoulders after such an experience and carry on. The more sensitive is inclined to become a recluse—not wishing to place herself in the face of a new opportunity FOR FEAR THE SAME THING WILL HAPPEN TO HER AGAIN! She becomes the timid soul, the Miss Milquetoast of society. Instead of facing her problem squarely and endeavoring to become more self-confident, she draws away from society and becomes greatly self-conscious.

With what result? She is depressed, unhappy, envious and lonely. Through her voluntary retirement from what should be her normal life, she releases her grip on the essentials and lets the happiness she so longs for fly right out of her window.

Woman has more at her call to aid her in conquering timidity than has man. If she will summon the will power, she may change her personality, her philosophy, her appearance. She can easily become the person she wishes she were instead of the unhappy lady she is! But it does take determination.

Her primary step is to drop, instantly, her self-consciousness. She must say to herself: "People are not looking at me. People are not watching what I do. People do not care what has happened to me in the past. People are not criticizing me."

GROOM'S ATTITUDE
Dear Mrs. Post: I am writing for a friend who is to be married very soon. Her wedding will take place in a small country church. There is only one singer in the church and he happens to be the groom. Is it ever permissible for the groom to sing at his own wedding? So far as the arrangement of the church is concerned, it would work out all right. The organ, which is in the choir loft, would be hidden by the banking at the altar so that it would be possible for the singer to remain hidden. However, unless you say this will be quite all right, you will just have to be content with organ music alone and no singing.

Opening Bid Of 3 Spades Was Wrong

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: In a recent game of rubber bridge my partner and I fell heir to the following North and South hands: "North-South vulnerable."

NORTH		EAST
♠ 10 6	♥ 7 4 3	♠ 7 4	♥ K 9 5
♦ J 7	♣ K Q J 9 7 4	♦ 10 6	♣ A Q 10 4 3 2
WEST		SOUTH
♠ 8 5	♥ 7 4	♠ A K Q J 9 5 2	♥ A 8 2
♦ A 10 6	♣ K 9 5	♦ 8 5	♣ A 5
♠ 8 3 2	♥ 10 6	♦ 8 5	♣ A 5

* The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 spades	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 spades	Pass

"As it happened, hearts were opened and we took thirteen tricks. Naturally, we feel that we should have reached a small slam contract. Was there something radically wrong with the above bids? South had nine tricks in his own hand, but was reluctant to bid after the five spade bid from his partner. Your comments as to how these two hands should have been bid to reach an unbeatable small slam in either black suit would be appreciated. D. B. R. Illinois."

The first and most glaring error in the bidding was South's opening three spade bid, although, strange to say, this should not have been fatal in view of the subsequent bidding. South's hand was decidedly too strong for an opening three bid. In the first place, he had at least one too many aces for this bid and, in the second, his playing strength was slightly above the maximum for such a bid. Although an opening two spade bid would represent a slight stretch, I greatly prefer it to the three bid actually chosen. Indeed, considering that South was absolutely sure in spades, had first round control of three suits and second round control of the fourth suit, diamonds, I am inclined to feel that an opening two bid might achieve the best result.

But whether South opens with two spades or with only one, there should be little difficulty in arriving at a small slam. As a matter of fact, on the bidding that actually took place there should have been no difficulty. If North had responded to three spades with four diamonds, the suit in which South had a singleton, South would have had no reason to get "bullish," but after the club bid from North the solidifying ace in South's hand should have made him very optimistic, because he should have visualized a long club suit upon which he could discard his heart losers. Thus, it would have taken very little nerve or imagination for South to bid six spades over North's five. Incidentally, if South's four no trump was a conventional Culbertson 4-5 no trump, North made the wrong response. He should have signed off at the lowest bid suit, clubs, inasmuch as he had no ace.

The correct bidding throughout would be:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Or, if South started with only a one spade bid (which could not be criticized) the same result would be attained after North made the encouraging response of two clubs. Since this response would show about two honor tricks (or, if slightly less, a long suit), South would be justified in forcing the bidding to six spades. In short, the moment South gets an favorable response to his opening bid he should not let the bidding die short of a slam.

Table Behavior

Dear Mrs. Post: Which is the correct way to sit at a table to eat? Do one keep both hands above the table or just the right one for eating and the left resting on the table, or is the left hand supposed to be left in the lap?

Answer: Use it to hold a small piece of bread or rest it for short periods against the edge of the table. But if you are using your right hand alone for a whole course, you let the left rest in your lap.

A Continental Breakfast

Dear Mrs. Post: What is a Continental Breakfast? I am thinking of staying at a particular hotel in New York that advertises a Continental breakfast served in the room.

Answer: Breakfast coffee with either toast or rolls—and sometimes (in America but not on the continent) orange juice.

WILD DUCK DINNER

With the hunting season in full swing it is time to be prepared for handling whatever wild game may come your way.

There really isn't a great deal of difference in preparing wild game from domestic meats and poultry. The flesh of game has a wild flavor which is highly prized and should not be camouflaged with strong seasonings. Soaking in water or diluted vinegar is unnecessary and a bad practice. Such soaking does not lessen the "gamey" flavor and draws out all the rich juices which give flavor to all meats and fowl, domestic or wild.

When roasting wild duck, fill inside of duck with sliced apples or an onion. Cover breast side with strips of bacon and bake exactly as you do domestic fowl.

Here are delicious accompaniments for a perfect dinner.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

This nation is inevitably heading for a dictatorship unless we de-centralize our population and encourage more home-ownership. Our real estate salesmen are doing more to protect us from communism and dictators than all our politicians at Washington.

CASE O-177: Clint B., aged 31, has been married for 7 years.

"Clint has always been a likeable fellow," one of his friends commented, "but he has drifted along casually until the last year."

"How she ever did it, I don't know," but his wife then persuaded him to buy a home in the suburbs, for they have a couple of children.

"Now Clint has a garden, and has planted a few fruit trees. He is really a changed man, Dr. Crane. All he thinks about is that house of his."

"Where he used to be careless of his rented home and let the grass grow long in the summer, he dies out of cities where most of the citizens are home-owners. If we are ever to have the maximum amount of good government and neighborliness among our people, we must see that they own their homes."

Even if it is only a small plot of second-rate land or a tired-down house, we must encourage home ownership. The very foundation of our democracy is rooted in ownership of homes.

In earlier days our government opened up land to settlers, who homesteaded it. The government originally bought that land and then gave it away.

Perhaps we shall find it necessary and desirable to repeat that process for this nation will never again see the day when we are free from the responsibility of looking after millions of our less intelligent citizens.

They are going to be with us forever. Herded into our cities where they can't raise even their potatoes and other vegetables, we not only must pay their rent and coal bills, but their clothes and shoes, but give them money for even a bit of food.

If they lived on small farms of 5 to 10 acres, they could at least raise their food as well as their morale, for they have large families of children who could hoe the garden truck.

Now these children get into gangs and become hoodlums, or else put us to the further expense of furnishing them parks in which to play, plus swimming pools and gymnasiums.

The best antidote for hoodlumism and communism is home ownership. Even our intelligent people become much more responsible citizens and more intelligent voters when they own a home.

THE HOME GARDENER

By EDWIN H. PERKINS

In sections of the country where zero temperatures are common, it is well to provide some protection for bedding roses. Unless some provision is made for them they are likely to be killed out entirely.

Many forms of protection are available and some of the commercial products are well worth their initial cost. However, the thrifty gardener tries to do the best he can with whatever he has at hand and for him the best protection is loose soil piled up about the plants as high as is convenient. The exposed portions above the plant and the filled-up soil can be wrapped in evergreen boughs, corn fodder or any other material to keep off the wind and sun. Even though the portions above the filled-up soil are not protected, the plant will freeze down only to the then new soil line and the plants will renew themselves as usual from this level next season.

The availability of protective material is not general throughout the

Standard Used in Measuring Child Must be the Right One

BY ANGELO PATRI

One should make sure that the standard used in measuring a child is the right one, for him. Right in itself. Right for the child concerned. A mother was warned that her two-year-old child was not talking as well as he ought. "He needs to be helped a little," said the specialist. "He is stammering a good bit; you must be careful to give him the feeling of ease, of security, so that he has no fear. Fear, however slight, checks a little child's speech. It is usual for children beginning to talk, to stammer. They have more ideas to express than they have speech power to express them. Be very gentle about it and give him all the time in the world."

"But he shouldn't stammer," the mother said. "Why should he stammer? My sister's child is just about his age, and he never stutters. It's just a bad habit, and I have to make him stop it. I don't want his cousin to be laughing at him."

Two wrong standards. No two children are alike. No two grow at the same rate or in the same way. The fact that one does not stammer and that the other does, is no reason for blaming the unfortunate one. Some do, some don't, and the best way to help a child over this stammering time is to give him time, plenty of it; listen as long and as patiently as necessary, and never let him feel that you are pressing him. Never mind what any other child his age is doing. This one is different. Study his particular need and help him.

The next mistaken standard is the one that insists upon superiority over another child at any price. "His cousin will laugh at him." That is pernicious. If his cousin does such an unholly thing it is so much the worse for the cousin. His character is harmed, not that of the stammering child. The stammerer will talk all right when he completes his growth, but the character of the one who was taught to think himself superior when he was only lucky, is going to bear the marks of bad training. In the meantime of the stammering child is made to feel inferior to his fluent-speaking relative, his speech will suffer, his mental health will suffer, his whole being is checked and burdened by unthinking criticism and ill-judged punishment. Encourage the stanmering one; smile at him encouragingly; sometimes tell his story for him until he gets a hold on it; always let him know he has your entire sympathy and understanding is doing. This one is different. Study his particular need and help him.

And I would be careful about measuring a child's progress against that of any group of children in the public eye. They are not good standards for ordinary children. Their lives are not the lives of the ordinary child because their experiences are extraordinary. Shirley Temple, The Dione children, are unique. They cannot be the standard of measurement for the home-seated child of the usual family. Gifted children are rare and their lives are set apart. Quaints are rarer still. Measure a child by the simplest standard of all: Is he happy?

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write to the care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Many Rewards for Woman Who Knows How to Handle Husband

BY DOROTHY DIX

Charles Schwab once said that he drew a million-dollar-a-year salary not for what he knew about finance or steel-making, but for what he knew about handling men. Shoo! Lots of women can turn that trick and they get better paid for doing it. Whenever you see a woman diked out like Solomon in all his glory, with ropes of matched pearls, limousines and palaces, yachts and things, you are beholding a woman who knows how to manage men.

When you see a woman whose husband eats out of her hand and who stays in love with her after she gets old and fat, you are looking at a woman who knows how to handle men. Now, considering how rich are the rewards of those skilled in the fine art of managing men, it is strange that women so seldom think it is worth while acquiring it.

In the first place, it will go farther than beauty or brains or glamor or what not in helping them to secure husbands. In the second place, it will enable them to hold their place. And, in the third place, it will make their marriages happy and serene and peaceful instead of being a forty years' domestic warfare.

The generality of women, however, ignore these obvious facts. They marvel over why some homely girl marries the catch of the season, while the good-looking were left waiting at the church, so to speak. They profess not to be able to understand why the husband of some commonplace appearing woman is so devoted to her, while theirs are flirting with every pretty flapper. Apparently it does not occur to them that whether a woman succeeds or fails with men depends altogether on whether or not she knows how to manage them.

One woman who is all hot and bothered over this subject asks me: "Will you tell me what's the matter with men and what qualities men really appreciate in their wives? I have been married for twenty years. I have tried hard to do my duty as a wife. I have been industrious, thrifty, economical. Am a good cook and I've kept a clean house. I have nursed my husband when he was sick. I have stood by him when he was in financial difficulties and helped him pull through. I am sure he likes me and respects me, but that is all. Otherwise I am just a piece of useful household machinery."

"Across the street is my neighbor who is shiftless and lazy. She makes her husband get up and cook his own breakfast. He comes home at night to a dirty house and a mean dinner. She keeps him in debt with her extravagance. Yet he adores her and fusses over her and thinks she is the most beautiful and wonderful woman in the world. Now what's the answer to that?"

Just that she knows how to manage men. Some women instinctively know how to please a man. Others acquire the art of studying a man.

They know that even the biggest and strongest man wants to be flattered and to cry on a woman's shoulder now and then, and have her kiss the hurt the world has dealt him and make it well. They know that men like for the women they give things to to make a great shouting over the gift and to show appreciation of their generosity. And above all, they know that every man wants his wife to admire him, and that as long as she will beat on the cymbals and tell him how great and wonderful he is that she can lead him where she will.

As a matter of fact, the technique of managing a husband is simple. It consists in making him comfortable and giving him plenty of appreciation and flattery. And beating the Other Woman to it.

How to Handle Uninvited Guests
Dear Dorothy Dix—A few days ago we received a letter from my father's uncle saying that he was bringing his wife and children for a vacation at our home. It will be extremely inconvenient for us to have them, as we are in a very straitened financial circumstance. My father

"Who wrought the miracle?" "I did!" She gave a little wiggle of childlike glee. "What sort of an interior decorator am I, Mr. Timothy Conliss? Round Table Discussion of 'America and the War' Will Be Staged for Women Voters

"AMERICA and the War," a round table discussion by four members of the faculty of Lawrence college, will open the year's program for the League of Women Voters at its first membership meeting at 8 o'clock Monday night in the auditorium of Appleton Vocational school.

Donald Du Shane, associate professor of government, Dr. M. M. Bober, professor of economics, Dr. A. A. Trever, professor of history, and Dr. Richard O. Cummings, associate professor of history, will be the speakers in the round table program. The round table will be followed by an open forum to be conducted by Prof. Du Shane.

Because of the active interest in the present European situation and the present session of congress, League members are inviting their husbands or one member of their family to hear the discussion. The speakers are well known in the valley, particularly for their participation in recent forums and panel discussions on various subjects of business, politics and foreign affairs.

First of Series
This meeting is the first of a series of six varied programs to be held at the Vocational school the fourth Monday of every month. It is being sponsored by the department of government and foreign affairs of the league, headed by Mrs. Roy Marston. The programs throughout the year, under the direction of various departments of the league will deal with subjects in the field of education, child welfare, city government, the legal status of women, and some phase of economic warfare.

In order to understand problems of city government, and to learn the history and background of these problems and questions of policy that a citizen should know, the league will undertake a study of "Know Your Town" as a league study project for the year. Members of the league who are interested in this study group will begin work in November as soon as the league gets underway with its program. The board of directors will appoint a committee to direct the study program of the "Know Your Town Group," which is open to any league member and whose programs will be held independently of the regular monthly programs.

Since the question of the teachers' tenure will come before the people of Wisconsin in the next state election, a discussion of this subject is being planned for the general meeting Nov. 27. The speaker will present all phases of the teachers' tenure, according to Mrs. Herb Hellig, who is making arrangements of the meeting as head of the department of government and education.

Child Welfare
January 22, league members will hear a speaker on a subject of child welfare with Miss Marie Klein, head of that department, in charge. Some phase of government and its operation will form the basis of the lecture program for Feb. 26 with Mrs. Glenn J. Hoffmann in charge.

The meeting March 25 will be based on current problems concerning the legal status of women. Mrs. Abraham Sigman will plan the program. Mrs. James B. Wagg, head of the department of government and economic warfare, will have charge of the topic and lecture which will pertain to her particular field in league work for the meeting April 22.

In May the league will hold its spring business meeting, when final reports will be given and election of officers will take place. Officers of the group are Mrs. H. F. Scherzinger, president; Mrs. William F. Kelm, vice president; Mrs. James J. Mackesy, secretary; Mrs. Paul Stevens, treasurer; Mrs. William Nemacheck is the finance director and Mrs. Rudolph Kubitz, membership chairman.

of the committee in charge which consists of the Misses Catherine Roemer and Mary Lou Van Wyk, Appleton; and Lucille Klubertanz, Milwaukee.

Mrs. Harry Leith, Mrs. M. L. Reed and Mrs. L. J. Krause won the bridge prize and Mrs. John Hammill, Mrs. Robert Grundeman and Mrs. P. J. McCone the schafkopf awards. Mrs. Nick Dressing and Mrs. Robert Ebbesen were winners at schafkopf and Mrs. Augusta Schultz and Mrs. Elizabeth Neugebauer at plumpack. There will be no party next Thursday, the fifth of the series to be Nov. 2.

Needlework Guild Prepares Contributions for Charities

MEMBERS of the Appleton branch of the Needlework Guild of America are preparing their annual contribution of two or more new articles of wearing apparel or household linen, which will be exhibited Nov. 1, from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, at the home of the local Guild president, Mrs. Thomas N. Barows, 211 S. Union street.

The garments then will be distributed to hospitals, homes and other charities.

The Guild is a comparatively new organization in Appleton, having been organized only last fall, but its charitable work has already provided hundreds of pieces of warm underwear, woolen stockings and heavy sweaters for children who had previously spent the winter in flimsy cotton clothes.

Touching letters of gratitude came to the Guild officers after last year's distribution of garments.

Two little girls wrote, "We want to thank you for the clothes. We like them very much and we will try to take good care of them."

Mother Grateful
From a grateful mother came the following letter:

"Miss Johnson has just been kind enough to bring to our home the clothing you have furnished for our little ones. It certainly will help us over a 'tough spot.' By saying, 'It was like a Christmas morning in our home,' can I give you an idea of the joy and excitement those garments caused? We sincerely thank you and may God bless you for your kindness."

Another mother wrote, "I would like to thank you very much for the caps and mittens that I received through the school nurse."

The officers are stressing the fact that warm, practical things, rather than exquisitely embroidered and dainty garments, are needed. Most of the garments go to homes inadequately heated, where warm pajamas and underwear are a necessity. Clothes for adults, as well as children, are accepted.

The only condition of membership in the Guild, called the charity that helps all charities, is the annual contribution of two or more new articles of wearing apparel or household linen, or a donation of money—no amount specified. There is no other fee, and there is only one meeting a year, for the collection and distribution of garments.

Present officers of the Appleton branch of the Guild are Mrs. Thomas N. Barows, president; Mrs. Alden Megrew, vice president; Mrs. Lincoln Thiesmeyer, treasurer; and Mrs. Clarence Hockings, secretary.

MARRIAGE LICENSES
Application for marriage licenses has been made at the office of John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk, by Arnold Borchardt, Hortonville, and Gerda Laudon, route 1, Appleton; Robert Krantzsch, Appleton, and Josephine Freude, Appleton.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Hammen, Main street, entertained a large number of relatives and friends at their home Monday evening in observance of their fifteenth wedding anniversary. Cards and dancing provided amusement and a lunch was served. About fifty guests were present.

A HEART-TO-HEART TALK ABOUT DIAMONDS

YOU have no doubt noticed that some diamonds are much more beautiful, more brilliant than others. Two diamonds of exactly the same size may vary greatly in brilliance... and in value. Color, perfection of cutting, freedom from flaws, as well as size, determine the price. In general, however, persons who have made a study of diamonds agree that it is better to select a finer stone of smaller size rather than a large one of inferior grade. It is wiser to buy quality, and pay for it out of income over a period of time, than to skimp on a purchase that will live with you for years.

IN SELECTING your diamonds, be guided by the man who has made the study of precious stones his life work—Your Jeweler. He will gladly show you how diamonds differ, and help you choose a ring of which you can be truly proud. Look for this emblem in our windows.

Inspectors Will Hear Address by Goodland Tonight

Appleton Mayor to Speak At State Convention Banquet

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., will speak at the convention banquet of the Wisconsin Chapter of Electrical Insulators at 6:30 this evening in the Conway hotel. A dance will follow the banquet.

The state chapter opened a 3-day convention in Appleton yesterday. Reservations have been made for 90 people at tonight's banquet.

Mayor Goodland will deliver an address of welcome, with J. A. Poehlmann, Milwaukee, vice chairman of the convention, responding.

Ross Williams, southern division manager of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, was scheduled to speak at 1:30 this afternoon at the convention, which has its headquarters in the Conway hotel. "Looking Into The Future" was his subject.

The convention sessions will be resumed at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, with discussion of inspectors' problems. J. E. Wise, Madison, representing the state industrial commission, will talk on "Proposed Regulations and What We Hope To Accomplish."

Election Tomorrow

The resolutions and nominating committees will make their reports and the election of officers held shortly before noon. Discussion will reopen at 1:30 in the afternoon, the final session.

Louis E. Luebke, Appleton electrical inspector, has been in charge of arrangements for the meeting, assisted by Arthur R. Hartzheim and Clarence H. Schultz of Appleton.

Wives who are accompanying their husbands to the convention attended luncheons yesterday and today, were invited to a theater party this afternoon, and will be present at tonight's banquet and dance.

The delegates and their wives held informal gathering at Koehn's hall last evening, with a buffet luncheon and entertainment. Students of Marie's Dance academy presented part of the program. Those who performed were Miss Marie Zapp, Richard Mauthe, Kimberly, and Barbara Wells, New London.

Relief and Welfare Council Sets Oct. 28 As Date of Campaign

The Appleton relief and welfare council at a meeting yesterday in city hall set Oct. 28 as the date for the annual solicitation of clothes and furnishings for Appleton's needy and Nov. 4 as the date for collecting the articles.

As in past years, boy scouts of the Appleton district will do the actual canvassing and collecting of articles which will be distributed among needy families.

Scouts will be assigned various sections of the city for solicitations and then will work with trucks and cars in picking up the offerings of Appleton residents.

The relief and welfare council will make further plans for the annual campaign at a meeting next Thursday in city hall.

Phelan to Speak On Recreation at Open Civic Meet

Kenosha Man Will Appear at Morgan School Oct. 25

Arrangements have been completed for an open meeting of the Appleton Civic association at 8 o'clock next Wednesday evening at the Morgan school when G. M. Phelan, president of the Wisconsin Association of Amateur Unions and Kenosha recreational director, will give a talk.

Phelan will discuss formation of a civic recreational program and its benefits. The speaker is a former principal of the Bain school, Kenosha, one of the largest elementary schools in the state. He is secretary and treasurer of the Wisconsin Recreation association, and he has had several articles on recreation published in the national association's magazine.

The Wisconsin Conference of Social workers conducted two statewide surveys of recreational programs, and the Kenosha program, under Phelan's direction, both times was given a first place rating.

Following his talk, there will be a general discussion program. The civic association is promoting a city-wide recreational project for Appleton, and a definite program will be proposed after a study of programs of other cities is made.

High School Sophomores are Encored During Annual Show

Sophomores of Appleton High school proved to the upperclassmen Thursday afternoon that they can put on a good show even though they are new to the ways of senior high school life. The juniors and seniors even went so far as to ask for encores for some of the acts in the sophomore talent show presented during the assembly period. The program was a project of Curtin Call, dramatic society, and all the acts were coached by its members. Miss Ruth McKenna, head of the speech department, was in charge of production.

The easy tone of joviality was established by the master of ceremonies, Ralph Buesing. His coach was Marjorie Mader. Theodora Slater proved that she is potential material for the concert stage when she sang "Without a Song." David Bliss was her coach. Miss Slater came back later to entertain her audience with a reading in Negro dialect, "They're Ain't No Ghosts," the woe-filled tale of colored lad who was sent to pick a pumpkin on Halloween.

Betty Stevens at the cello and Margaret Rohan at the violin offered "Harlequin." They were accompanied at the piano by David Gallaher and coached by Bliss. The problem of a "teen age girl with her date" was the subject of an original skit written by Jean Rindell and entitled "Family Affair." In the cast were Mary Lou Collins, Joyce Kessler, Miss Rindell and Edward Blackman. Jean Ruhlberg and James Sherry directed.

Sailor Togs

Lois Schreiter and Gale Cook dressed in trim white sailor togs presented a tap dance number that brought them back to the stage for a bow. Gallaher was the accompanist and Cele Speel the coach. A young Charlie McCarthy is Mr. Doolittle, the doll of Francis Speel, who did a ventriloquist act. Speel also played his harmonica. Ardys Peters and Robert Otto assisted him.

Patricia Snow, dressed to suit her song "Alice Blue Gown," accompanied at the piano by Miss Nickach. Leo Griesbach did the coaching. A would-be Bing Crosby is Charles Benjamin, who played and sang "Wishing Will Make It So." Griesbach also assisted him. Ruby Looe, attired in a jaunty cowgirl costume presented a tap dance and some professional acrobatics. Her accompanist, Richard Pardee, was so popular that the balcony called him back to play "Comes Love" in his own particular style. For Pardee plays entirely by ear. Miss Speel was coach for this finale to the first talent show of the year. The juniors will perform next, and in spring the seniors will present their traditional Vodvil.

Condition of Injured Sportsman Is Improved

The condition of Peter Erickson, 31, Bear Creek, who was accidentally shot while pheasant hunting Wednesday afternoon near Bear Creek, was reported improved today at the New London Community hospital. Erickson was hit in the chest and left arm by a charge from a shotgun held by Robert Nord, Bear Creek. Nord failed to see Erickson because of brush while shooting at pheasant.

City Is Repairing Its Equipment for Battle With Snow

Loading Machine Being Reconditioned; Another Plow Added

Although the mild weather of the last few days isn't exactly a reminder of winter, the Appleton street department is preparing for the annual battle with winter's snow and ice.

The snow loading machine is being repaired and reconditioned for another winter's work. The motor in the machine's tractor is being replaced at a cost of $309 along with other minor repairs.

The loader was idle for a number of years until last year when it was dragged from its corner at the department barns and reconditioned for duty. Use of the loader last winter was materially reflected in the lower cost of snow removal in the city, according to the records.

Cost of snow removal for the 1938 winter totaled $11,973.13 plus $906 for the care of arterial stops and hills. This year $7,140 plus about $1,000 for arterials and hills has been spent with snow removal in December yet to be paid for.

The city this summer purchased a new wing plow for a 2-ton truck which gives the street department four plows, a V-type plow on a 5-ton truck and wing plows on two 3 1/2-ton trucks. In addition, the city has two graders and a tractor which are used in snow plowing work. Eight other trucks are used for hauling snow.

The council Wednesday night purchased two carloads of calcium chloride which will be mixed with cinders and stock piled at the department barns for snow and ice prevention on streets.

Two Injured When Car Leaves Road

Oconto Young Men Taken To New London Community Hospital

New London — Two motorists were injured, one seriously, when a car driven by Knuth Arnon, 23, Oconto, went off Waupaca County Trunk X between New London and Northport about 1 o'clock this morning.

Arnon suffered a severe scalp wound and a temple artery was severed. Arnon's companion, Ellsworth Wilde, 22, Oconto, was bruised. Arnon said he was forced off the road by another car and his machine went through a fence and rolled over. The injured were taken to the New London Community hospital by Arnon's father who was following the pair in another car.

Scoffs at Fears 'We Will be Next' After Hitler Wins

Germany from contracting in this country for construction of unarmed submarines to take oil and other war supplies back under the "cash and carry" sections.

Besides the amendments to be offered by Clark, Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) said he would propose forbidding belligerent governments from calling in old securities from their citizens and marketing them in the United States. New credits are barred in the bill, but old ones may be extended.

During yesterday's debate, Senator Austin of Vermont, assistant Republican leader who is supporting embargo repeal, argued that it was necessary to help Great Britain and France win the war and thus eliminate danger of German aggression in this hemisphere.

Agreeing with part of this contention, Senator Minton (D-Ind.)

Consider Use of Old Post Office by County

The buildings and grounds committee yesterday reported on the possible county use of the old post office building at a meeting of the executive committee at the courthouse. The committee will continue its study on the proposal. It was estimated that maintenance of the building would be about $1,000 a year. The executive committee authorized purchase of an adding machine for the county WPA office which this week moved from the old post office building to the city hall. A bond of $3,000 for T. S. Davis, county pension director, was ordered.

California Has Nothing on Us—Mercury Hits 65

Unseasonable Warm Weather Continues in Appleton Today

And they talk about the climate in California! Here it's Oct. 20 and early this afternoon the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building registers 65 degrees, a mark more suited to a balmy spring day.

Furnace fires have burned low practically all week, few cars have been prepared for cold weather, heavy clothing looks decidedly out of place, some of the more hardy flowers are yet in evidence and goifers are still making the rounds. All this with winter just around the corner.

Fair weather is expected to continue tonight and Saturday with slightly cooler temperatures tomorrow.

Highest and lowest temperatures during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 61 degrees at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 42 degrees at 5 o'clock this morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Maximum and minimum marks in the nation yesterday as reported at official weather bureau stations were 91 degrees at Phoenix, Ariz., and 28 degrees at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., according to the Associated Press.

'Overwhelming Tide of New Members' Aim of Red Cross, State Conference Is Told

Madison—(7)—James L. Fieser, of Washington, D. C., vice chairman of the American National Red Cross, told a statewide roll call conference today that chapter membership objectives were a thing of the past this year and the organization would work for "an overwhelming tide of new members to meet added humanitarian responsibilities at home and abroad."

He addressed a Wisconsin meeting in which the attendance exceeded all expectations. About 600 advance reservations were made, whereas local committees had planned on 500. The roll call will start on Armistice day, Nov. 11, and extend through Nov. 30.

Fieser listed the needs for expansion within the United States and for meeting responsibilities resulting from the European war.

He said the national organization, even before the war started, had set membership goal far in excess of any recent enrollment because of a demand for Red Cross services in public health, safety and disaster preparedness.

"Horizon Darkens"

Along with these objectives, he said, the Red Cross must recognize that "the horizon has again suddenly darkened."

"We are suddenly aware of the need for applying the same same work principles to the repatriation of Americans who have been living or who have been stranded abroad," he said. "The making of surgical dressings, refugee garments, the transmission of medicines and surgical instruments to help the wounded on the battlefields of Europe and many other activities have recently crept into our consciousness as new challenges."

"The wounded in war, the women and children who are its victims, again begin to pull upon the heart-strings not only for sympathy but also for acts of mercy. To help the victims of war is an evidence of human brotherhood which the world needs today. It is a glimmer of light in the midst of darkness."

More Workers Needed

Fieser said far more roll call workers were needed than in normal times and a personal invitation to join the Red Cross should be issued to every adult during the approaching roll call.

"It is very evident that our adult membership has not reached the saturation point of possibility even for peace time," he asserted. "We are not keeping the Red Cross ready with its present 5,700,000 adult members in a country in which nearly 25,000,000 private passenger cars are constantly chugging along the highways."

Fieser urged a special appeal to rural areas where he said would be found millions of additional members.

Summarizing Red Cross work during the last year Fieser said was given to 130,000 disaster victims in 43 states; 313,000 wounded first aid and 100,000 life-saving; 9,000,000 junior members were given community service, health education and character building courses; 2,600 mobile first aid units and 2,700 highway emergency first aid stations were established.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

He picked up a log of wood and chucked it savagely into the fire. "I own you a lot, Buff, and twenty years ago, but even taking those things into consideration you're pushing me far—much too far. We're both tired out. We'd better go to bed."

"Then why the extra log on the fire?" she asked. "It's unreasonable," he conceded. "But then so is everything in this cockeyed world—especially the things that have happened to me this summer." He rose and held out his hand to her. "This is goodbye as well as good-night, my child! You've been mighty swell to me. Please don't think I don't appreciate it. I hope you get your former soon because it's getting too cold for you to stay on the ranch much longer. By the way, what's to become of Mrs. Webb?"

"She's coming to Boulder to keep house for us," was the composed reply. "Us?"

"Us. It may have to be for me at first—if you insist on being all haughty and stubborn; but sooner or later it will be for us." She laid her own small hand in his and smiled up at him. "I always know what I want, Tim, and I always get it. I'll save a lot of time if you realize that."

He shoved his hands into his pockets. "Oddly enough, I have a few ideas along that line myself. Even in a negative way, I know what I don't want, if you get my meaning; and marriage heads the list just now. Sorry, Buff. It was never my intention to turn down any girl but you must admit you've asked for it."

She went quietly toward the door, her filmy skirts floating about her. Just before she left the room she turned and waved her hand at him. "See you soon—in Boulder, Timmy dear!"

Letter from Eleanor Carroll to her daughter Buff.

"Darling, we expect to be in Chicago by Tuesday of next week. Surely by now you will have found someone to replace Atkins and can join us at once. It has been a hard time, this separation from you, but I feel sure it has done us all good. Lance is in fine spirits and has a new idea for a series of cartoons about which he is writing his syndicate. Please wire when we may expect you."

"ELEANOR."

Reply from Buff to her mother.

"Sorry but I've decided to spend the winter in Boulder. You know I always thought it a most attractive place, and I've about settled on an occupation for the next few months; perhaps for the rest of my life. I agree with you that we've all benefited by the separation. You said nothing about your headaches which makes me hope that you've had none. Ask Lance to write me about his new idea for the series of cartoons. Yours with love, "BUFF."

"THEY NEVER SAID WHERE THEY WERE GOING AND IT WAS NOT NONE OF MY BUSINESS TO ASK ADVICE NOT WORRY YOUNG LADY SURE CAN LOOK AFTER HERSELF SIMONS."

Paragraph from social column in Boulder paper.

"Miss 'Buff' Carroll, daughter of the celebrated cartoonist, Lance Carroll, is a guest at the Boulder-Ado Hotel. To this correspondent she confided that since business will keep her for some time in this city, she intends renting a furnished apartment. The cook-housekeeper from her father's ranch will act as chaperon, provided so breezy and charmingly assured young person as Miss Carroll feels the need of this concession to Mrs. Grundy. Miss 'Buff's' business will be placed in the hands of Mr. Timothy Corliss who, your correspondent learned, has lately been a guest at the Carroll Ranch."

Tim, doggedly at work in his laboratory, did not see this item but George Weekes did, and chuckled. Also he telephoned Buff at once at the hotel.

"Your opening gun was immensely effective," he told her.

TINY SKATER STARS IN NEW PICTURE

Irene Dare, miniature edition of Sonja Henie, stars in "Everything's On Ice," opening at the Rio theater today for six days. The film, a carnival of fun and romance on ice, also features Eric Linden, Roscoe Karns, and Edgar Kennedy.

Topping the same program is "Beau Geste," latest screen epic from the Paramount studios. Gary Cooper and Ray Milland are co-starred, with Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy, and Susan Hayward in important roles.

"Tim and I have had two dinner invitations already on the strength of it. What next?"

"Two things," was the brick reply. "Refuse the invitations and accept one from me. I've rented an apartment and I want Tim to see it before I do anything to it. It's pretty awful." She gave the address, named the time the two friends would be expected.

"A sort of 'before and after' demonstration to Tim, is that the idea?"

"George, your brain does you credit," she assured him. "That's the idea exactly. Did Tim tell you that my intentions are honorable and far from remote? That, in fact, I intend to marry him—and soon?"

This was too much even for George's nonchalance. Buff heard him gasp before he answered.

"N-no. He didn't tell me. But I'd back you Buff, to put through any plan that pops into your head. Do you think Tim will let me be best man? And please don't have it an evening wedding because I've put on weight since I bought my one and only suit of tails, and can't afford another. Or if I do, I can't give you a wedding present. You'll have to choose."

"Don't bother me with trifles," was Miss Carroll's advice. "For all I know I may have to kidnap Tim and drive him into Denver to a Justice of the Peace. I have lots on my mind, and all of it more important than what you wear at any time or place."

He agreed humbly that this might be so; further agreed to produce Tim—with or without handcuffs—for dinner on the following evening; and hung up the receiver feeling that he had been playing about with an electric dyson, in which though stimulating was not without a certain element of danger.

District Attorney In Warm Praise of Lie Detector Test

Manawa—Declaring that the lie detector test administered and perfected by Dr. J. H. Mathews, chairman and director of the department of Wisconsin, is "absolutely infallible," District Attorney Paul E. Roman praised the device that has completely solved two cases for Waupaca county within the last month in a statement made Thursday.

"There's no doubt in my mind that the lie detector test is the most accurate means we have to determine whether a person is telling the truth. Just the thought of undergoing the test causes many suspects to confess while in other cases, the guilty party reveals 'all' after the results have been shown," Roman asserted.

The latest victory that the device has won for Waupaca county officials was the plea of guilty which Robert Genskow, town of Dupont, entered after submitting to the test a week ago. Genskow pleaded not guilty of grand larceny when arraigned before Justice S. W. Johnson at Waupaca.

The defendant then volunteered and consented to go to Madison and undergo the test. At the conclusion of the test, Dr. Mathews informed the district attorney that Genskow was falsifying in regard to his denial of the offense with which he was charged.

The next day the defendant made a complete confession to Sheriff Duncan R. Campbell and he was taken back to Waupaca where he withdrew his plea of not guilty and admitted the charge.

A month ago the lie detector closed Waupaca and Winnebago officials' inquiry into the death of Mrs. Eva Detlef of Chicago, whose body was found floating in the Wolf river near Fremont Sept. 15. A man taken into custody and questioned by officers was released after submitting to the examination at Madison. The test revealed that the man had absolutely no connection with the drowning.

"Besides being infallible, the device is also a time saver for officials and a money saver for taxpayers," Roman stated. "In this latest case, the county was saved the expense of a jury trial which would have amounted to approximately $300," he declared.

Plan One-Day Drive Against Rodents in Outagamie County

The delighted squeals of rats will be heard the length and breadth of the countryside on Oct. 27, for that is the day selected for the fatal "banquet" for rats in Outagamie county.

Delicious foods, mixed with red squill, will be put out by farmers in a campaign to rid the county of the rodents. The drive is sponsored by the county board and J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, in cooperation with the United States Bureau of Biological Service.

As a result of years of experience in rat control, the federal rat specialists have perfected the 1-day, county-wide plan. Red squill is the fatal ingredient of the bait that will be available on the day of the rat banquet. Rats take the red squill bait quite readily, and only a small part of a teaspoonful is needed to cause death, the experts claim. Other animals, such as cats and dogs, may accidentally take some of the bait but it causes vomiting and the red squill thus is eliminated.

Fish and meat are the foods used. The idea of preparing two baits, according to Magnus, is to serve the rats a meal so they can choose the type of food they like the better. Improvements have been made, year by year, and now the concoction is made tasty enough for the most discriminating of rats.

All orders for those wishing to obtain bait must be in the county agent's office by Saturday noon. Those living in villages and cities should place their order with their supervisor before that time.

Honey Harvest Week to Be Observed Oct. 23-30

Honey harvest week will be observed Oct. 23 to 30. A nation-wide campaign to encourage every family to consume more honey during that period is reported by the state department of agriculture.

Achievement Day Date Is Changed

Program for County 4-H Club Members Will Be Held Nov. 18

Achievement day for Outagamie county 4-H club members has been changed from Oct. 28 to Nov. 18 because of the Appleton High school homecoming on the former date, J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, announced today. Achievement day will be held at the Kaukauna High school auditorium.

Arrangements for the program are going forward. It is planned to have the luncheon start promptly at 11:30 with county board members as guests.

Chocolate milk and coffee will be furnished by the 4-H leaders federation, and 4-H members are to bring their own dishes. Each 4-H club will appoint two persons to assist in serving the lunch.

All club members and their parents are entitled to attend the achievement program though they are not achievement members this year, Magnus said. The committee in charge has arranged a tentative program selected from the various clubs of the county. Arrangements also are being made to have one of the state club leaders address the group.

Strip Rotation Saves Soil, Water and Humus

Strip cropping combining with crop rotation adds up to "strip rotation," a method of saving soil and saving moisture that works well in many farming areas. The Soil Conservation service, in a bulletin to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent, gives actual comparisons as worked out on experimental plots.

In corn plots cultivated up and down hill for three years there was an annual soil loss averaging 43 tons to the acre yearly. By running the corn rows across the slope the loss was cut in half. In both cases three crops of corn in succession reduced fertility.

By strip rotation in the plots—planting corn rows across the slope and further breaking the slope with cross strips of close-growing hay crops to catch and strain out the soil that starts from the cultivated strips—the soil loss was cut to one twenty-fifth, a ton and a half a year instead of 43 tons. The water loss was only about one-fourth that from the all-corn plots. When the strips were plowed in as a part of the rotation, the roots and tops helped to restore organic matter and maintain fertility.

Mrs. H. Sommers Wins Prize at Card Party

Mrs. H. Sommers won the prize at schmeer and Reinhard Pils at with Wisconsin dairy interests as well as honey producers expected to reap some benefit.

Find Feed Prices Advance More Than For Milk or Eggs

While milk prices have advanced during the last month, feed prices have risen considerably more, according to a state department of agriculture bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

Prices of milk received by Wisconsin crop reporters averaged $1.25 in September, which is 7 cents or 6 per cent more than the August price, according to the crop reporting service.

During the same period dairy feed prices in Wisconsin advanced from $9.68 per thousand pounds to $11.07—an increase of 23 per cent. In August it took 82 pounds of milk to buy 100 pounds of feed while in September it took 95 pounds, thus making the feeding of commercial feeds somewhat less profitable for milk production.

A similar situation prevails in the relation of egg prices and poultry feed prices. While egg prices were higher in September than in August, they were considerably below the egg prices which prevailed a year ago at this time. In August 10 dozen eggs would buy 157 pounds of poultry feed but by September this had declined to 147 pounds.

APPLETON, WISCONSIN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1939

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

DEAR MAC—
What's become of the Junior Chamber of Commerce agitation for a swimming pool for Appleton? A couple of months ago there was a lot of talk around town about a campaign the junior chamber was going to stage to raise a lot of dough to build a pool, and a committee of big shots was appointed to figure out ways to raise this money and how to spend it. They even went so far as to get some architects or engineers to lay out some pretty plans to show how a pool would look.

I guess the Junior Chamber is a whole lot like the city council. They do a lot of talking about swimming pools in the summer time and as soon as it gets cold they forget about it until next summer when they start talking again. At the rate we're progressing it'll be a long time before we get a pool, and in the meantime the kids can swim in the family bath tub or get algae in their hair in the river.

You know, it's funny how much emphasis can be put on economy in government when matters of recreation or health are concerned. Spending 40 or 50 thousand dollars for a new city hall, with upholstered chairs for the aldermen is o.k., but let someone suggest that the city do something for the taxpayer and you can hear the howl half way to Neshan.

I can't see that building a swimming pool is a matter for public subscription at all. If it is a good thing for a community to have a municipal pool—and there are a lot of cities that think it is—then it ought to be built out of tax revenues. To go out and tap a few people for money that ought to come out of all of them for a municipal purpose just doesn't sound kosher.

I have a hunch that if this committee of big shots would spend its time and energy developing the public sentiment that already exists for a swimming pool that it could get action out of the council a lot quicker than it could raise money by public subscription. Maybe our councilmen are guessing a bit wrong on this matter of economy as it relates to a swimming pool. The committee of big shots I think can set the boys right in this regard.

At any rate if they are going to do anything about it at all they ought to do it right away, otherwise most of the kids of today will have long white whiskers before a pool is built.

Biffy

'Tis a balmy afternoon as we prepare this column and perhaps it will lead to a few balmy deductions but we're balmy enough that we don't give a whoop.

Appleton-Fond du Lac: One or two of those things which affect football games favor Appleton high this week. The Terrors haven't played for two weeks. They're hungry for a win, they're better than they were before the layoff and they're beginning to show progress. Fond du Lac played away over its head last week and whether it lost some enthusiasm in losing to East remains to be seen. It looks like a splendid opportunity for Appleton. So we'll compromise by saying the Terrors won't lose.

Lawrence-Monmouth: Coach Ivy Cahoon of Monmouth has been pointing for this game since that afternoon up here last fall. It's Monmouth's homecoming, too. And because of the long trip, the fact Lawrence was up so high last week, and because the Scots have all kinds of power, we're afraid the Vikes will stumble.

Green Bay East-Manitowish: Dick Davis says Manitowish and Vic Zierke, who doesn't know anything about football, says ditto. It'll be the finest battle of the conference season but we'll stick with East.

Green Bay West-Oshkosh: Here's a tough one to pick. West probably will have too much speed so, out of the hat, West.

North-Central: Intra-city battles are notorious for upsetting the dope. On the basis of past exhibitions, Central should win.

Menasha St. Mary's-St. Norbert: The Menashians have a much better reputation for the season. St. Mary's.

Marion-Clintonville: The Truckers to make a homecoming crowd happy for the first time in oh, so long.

New London-Kaukauna: Both are undefeated and are pointing for the Northeastern conference title. We're picking Kaukauna because it seems toughest on the basis of its record this fall.

West DePere-Menasha: Menasha should get back in the race in this game.

Shawano-Neenah: A bad afternoon for the Red Rockets who will catch the Indians bounding back from that Kaukauna defeat.

Ripon-Beloit: Last week we said the Beloit bubble had burst. Kromer of Ripon will throw some more pins into the bubble.

Ripon. Carroll-Lake Forest: Don't know much about Lake Forest. So we'll string with Carroll.

Kimberly-Fallaska: The Paper-mill boys are a way of pulling them out of the fire. We'll stay with them although this will be their biggest test.

St. John-Berlin: Don't believe the Dutchmen will be ready for this team. The Chuters still have too many boys ailing.

Tennessee-Alabama: Bob Neyland takes the wraps off the Tennessee powerhouse against formidable opposition. Alabama has a corking line, a great runner in Jimmy Nelson, a fine kicker in Charley Boswell. But the feeling persists here that this game is Tennessee's season. The nod goes to Tennessee.

Tulane-North Carolina: Two more unbeaten southern teams collide. North Carolina, with George Struikweiss and Jim Lallane in control, has shown the more versatile attack but Tulane boasts real power Tulane.

Notre Dame-Navy: Navy doesn't seem ready for this. Notre Dame.

Minnesota-Ohio State: This hunch vote goes to Minnesota with all due respect to the undefeated Buckeyes.

Texas Christian-Texas A. and M.: The ballot must be marked for Texas A&M.

Pitt-Duquesne: Psychologically the edge in this intra-city game always rests with little Duquesne. Once in a while the Dukes come through. With all that in mind, Pitt.

Yale-Army: Only sheer luck has kept Army unbeaten so far. We'll take the Cadets again and risk a set of badly burned fingers.

Mahattan-Auburn: Auburn gets the nod.

Cornell-Penn State: The nomination is Cornell.

Harvard-Penn: One of the hardest of them all to figure. Penn has scored two touchdowns and won two games but unquestionably has been covering up. Harvard is good and will be better. Penn.

New York University-Carnegie Tech: One wavering vote for the Pittsburghers.

Columbia-Princeton: We'll take Princeton.

Gophers Stand in
Way of Buckeyes'
March to a TitleMinnesota's Lack of Reserves May Be Deciding Factor

BY ARNOLD DERLITZKI

CHICAGO—(AP)—Ohio State, which has been cutting corners toward a Western conference football championship for five years without getting closer than a tie, goes out to elude the Big Ten's No. 1 title traffic cop at Minneapolis tomorrow.

Minnesota's defending champions have been directing conference title channels so competently since 1934 that only Northwestern has been able to sneak through to undisputed honors. Ohio State got away with a tie in 1935, but since the two schools did not meet that year, the tie cannot be laid directly to Minnesota's policing.

Tomorrow, however, the Buckeyes go out of their way to double park right before the Gophers and an anticipated crowd of 52,000 witnesses before flaunting their speed and passing antics. After that it will be up to Minnesota, which has a powerful first string eleven but may not be able to match Ohio State in reserve talent.

A defeat virtually would blast Minnesota's title chances and leave the road open to a new champion the first since Northwestern's 1936 conquest. In its opener last week, Minnesota was tied by Purdue. Ohio State will be after its second Big Ten triumph.

The contest topped a four-game conference program which includes Wisconsin at Northwestern, Indiana at Illinois and Michigan at Chicago. Purdue takes on Michigan State in a non-title go, while Iowa is idle.

Big Ten teams spent most of yesterday polishing offensive and defensive maneuvers. Ohio State coaches were so intent on perfecting Buckeye pass plays the squad almost missed its train for Minneapolis. Minnesota stepped up its forward passing with George Franck and Harold Van Every doing most of the work.

Northwestern and Wisconsin tapered off with light exercises. Indiana rehearsed new plays, Illinois and Michigan worked on pass defense and Chicago tried a new cast in offensive workouts. Two Michigan veterans, end Frutic and triple threat halfback Paul Kromer, will not make the trip to Chicago because of injuries.

Coach Mal Edward cautioned his Purdue squad against a letdown Saturday against Michigan State. At Iowa, Jerry Ankner, Dixon, Ill., sophomore, got a chance at quarterback as the Hawkeyes showed improvement at blocking and running. Notre Dame prepared for its thirteenth game with the Navy by running signals and holding a dummy scrimmage.

Lawrence drills this week have been against Monmouth formations as brought back by Assistant Coach Ade Dillon. To make the formations all the more perfect, Dillon emulated Scappachi. Monmouth's star back, in several drills, Ade didn't do so well when it came to picking up yardage but it must be remembered Scappachi is a lot younger.

Scots are heavy. Monmouth will have the edge over Lawrence in weights in almost every position but Jones' tackle. It is reported to have almost all of last year's players and they play hard with emphasis on power.

Lawrence apparently will use the same lineup that started last week's game. Kirchoff will be at one end and gather in occasional passes with Lingle at the other position. Jones will be at right tackle and John Messenger, his arm and wrist getting better each day, will be at the other. Powell and Florin are getting down lower in the guard positions and Garvey has shaken most of his crud and will be at center.

In the backfield, Romano will call the signals and block, Kaemmer will be at fullback, Nencki at left half and Bueasing at right half.

BELOIT PLAYS TONIGHT
Beloit—(AP)—With a week of heavy scrimmage under their belts, Beloit college gridmen hoped today to get back into victory stride in tonight's game with Ripon.

Convinced that lack of contact work, curtailed during preceding weeks, was responsible for the poor work of the Beloit line in the 33-6 defeat at Cornell college last week, Coach Bud Butler set out to correct the condition.

"Even at the risk of incurring new injuries we have to have contact work or suffer the consequences," Butler said.

Newest additions to the hospital list were Doug Cox and Bruce Duncan, senior tackle nursing leg injury. Duncan was expected to play. Jack Griffith, moved to quarterback to replace the injured Bruno Vurgill, also will start despite an ankle injury.

Bob Bourguignon at center, Bob McDaniel and Armand LaCerte, guards, Joe Lofredo and Don Sibley, tackles, Jim MacIoff and Joe Vogel at the wings against the Zephyrs. The backfield combination will be Collins, Hofmeister, Hart and McCoy.

Last year St. Mary's defeated St. Norbert twice by identical scores, 26 to 0.

DePere—St. Norbert high school football team will seek its third victory of the season Sunday at Menasha, where it meets St. Mary's.

Coach Nick Miketina's squad has defeated St. Stanislaus of Milwaukee, 21 to 7, and the West Green Bay Reserves, 6 to 0, while it has lost to East Green Bay reserves, 8 to 0 and to Chilton, 25 to 0.

Injuries have deprived the Squires of two of their hardest running backs, Paul Schumacher and Ralph Hartman. Schumacher broke his right arm in the East Green Bay game and will be out for the remainder of the season. Hartman is shelved for this week with an injured ankle. Coach Miketina has shifted Kurt Hofmeister to Hartman's fullback spot and is using Warren Hare and Dell McCoy in the halfback positions.

The St. Norbert high eleven has shown a great deal of improvement in the past two weeks. Although extremely light for a high school squad, the Squires have got plenty of pep and spirit to offset their lack of weight. Jim Collins, senior quarterback, is the sparkplug of the outfit and manages to keep the team on its toes all the time.

Manawa 6 Man Grid
Team Defeated, 20-12

Manawa—Manawa High school's six-man football team dropped a 20 to 12 decision to Winneconne at the latter place Tuesday afternoon. The Wolves rolled up and down the field all afternoon but could count only two touchdowns. The engagement was the last six-man affair of the season for the locals.

Friday night Manawa will invade Omro to participate in the big homecoming celebration arranged by the southerners. The Wolves are underdogs based on the season's play but if they can play an entire game like they did during the first half of the last two encounters between Mosinee and Kimberly, Omro will be in for a busy evening.

Coach Carl Swiston is expected to start Behnke and Yohr, ends; Ernst and Gahrke, tackles; Miller and Gehrke, guards; Herman, center; Piottier, quarterback; Klotzbuecher and Esche, halfbacks, and Garrity at full.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Ripon at Beloit (night),
Saturday
Lawrence at Monmouth,
Cornell at Coe,
Bradley at Carleton,
Griernell at Colorado C.,
Milwaukee at Knox.

LAWRENCE college gridgers left this morning by bus for Kaukauna, Ill., where they will workout and remain over night preparatory to battling Monmouth college at Monmouth, Ill., Saturday. It will be a Midwest conference test.

The Vikings bounded back into the Midwest race last week when they defeated Carleton college but they haven't any reason to believe they can take Saturday's game without another struggle. Last fall the Vikes treated Monmouth rather badly up here when Coach Ivy Cahoon thought he had a real ball team. Since that afternoon the Scott mentor, formerly of Green Bay West high, has been pointing for Lawrence. Added to that is Monmouth's homecoming.

Lawrence drills this week have been against Monmouth formations as brought back by Assistant Coach Ade Dillon. To make the formations all the more perfect, Dillon emulated Scappachi. Monmouth's star back, in several drills, Ade didn't do so well when it came to picking up yardage but it must be remembered Scappachi is a lot younger.

Appleton High Here Tomorrow

TERROR BACKFIELD STAR

Gene Pegel, above, plays right half for the Appleton High school football team and is one of the squad's most consistent performers. He will be seen in action tomorrow when the Terrors oppose Fond du Lac here. He can run or kick and is a strong defensive player. He is the son of Mrs. Agatha Pegel, 733 E. George Halas of Bears Is Raving Over His 'Freshmen'

NEW YORK—(AP)—It may be just a sales talk but George Halas, boss of the tremendous Chicago football Bears, is positively raving about the "freshmen"—notably solid Sid Luckman—with which his club has been blessed this fall.

George vows he's talking only what he feels—that his freshmen are the best first-year professional crop he's ever seen and that he "can't afford" to let such a brilliant ball-handler as Luckman go in a deal. However, it is known Dan Topping has made an offer for the ex-Columbia ace for his Brooklyn Dodgers, and it is reported Halas and Topping will huddle before the Bears leave town.

The whale-sized windy city lads are here to tangle with the New York Giants, defending champions of the National Pro league, on Sunday in the Polo Grounds.

They have a line that looks like a set of coal trucks, and backs who seem all shoulders. And not the least of these call-carriers are the first-year men: Luckman, bullet Billy Patterson from Baylor, Bob MacLeod, the ex-Dartmouth line wrecker, and Bill Osmanski, up from Holy Cross.

"We have ten freshmen out of 30 players on our roster," Halas explained, "and they're all taking their regular turn. They're that good."

"Most of all they have 'savvy.' Why, take Luckman there. I've put him in at quarterback which, under our system, is the toughest spot in football—right back of center. He handles the ball on all plays from 'T' formation. And in five games he has mastered what it ordinarily takes a player two years to learn."

In fact, even Jack Torrance has been giving George something to write home about. You remember Jack. He was the large Louisiana State fellow who used to do big things with a shot put. Then he tried prize ring fighting, at which he didn't do much big things. The Bears signed him up this year and he reported weighing a slight 325.

"Well, sir," George added, "he's down to 275 right now, and we're expecting him to be right good there in the line down the stretch."

Milwaukee—When it comes to baking a cake, few can tie Johnny Maltch. 145-pound senior spark-plug halfback of the Marquette university football squad. Johnny is the A-1 reserve in his dad's Milwaukee bakery and knows the business from A to Z.

With Madison approving the project, work will continue on the Pierce park hill next week with a crew of men and a power shovel.

Edwin Blackman is named president of Appleton Pistol and Rifle club at a meeting held last night at the Wasserbach farm range of the club. Barney Swamer was vice president, Clifford Christofferson, secretary, Ralph Olson, treasurer, and Harry Hassinger, range officer.

The club will inaugurate a new series of matches this fall and winter and will hold several social events. Anyone interested in the club should get in touch with officers. Indoor firing will start at Armory G later in the season.

Clintonville Will Honor Trucker Nine

Clintonville—A banquet in honor of the F. W. D. Trucker baseball team will be given at Hotel Marson on Friday evening, Oct. 27. The Truckers won the championship of the Northern State league for two consecutive seasons. The Clintonville Association of Commerce, the Rotary club and the Lions club are cooperating in sponsoring the event. Plans are being made for a program with an outside speaker. Tickets for the event may be purchased from Reuben Lendved, Otto Eberhardt or Francis Higgins. Reservations should be made by Thursday, Oct. 26. Leonard Goerlinger has managed the F. W. D. Truckers through the 1933 and 1939 season in the Northern State League.

New London High
Confident It Can Handle Kaukauna

NEW LONDON—Undefeated and unscored against in the Northeastern Wisconsin football conference, the New London Red and White grid machine will give battle to Kaukauna, the only other undefeated team of the loop, in a crucial meeting on the Kaukauna field Saturday afternoon.

Though rated the underdog against Karl Girdana and his teammates, New London teams have been noted for their upsets and under the able coaching of Gregory Charlesworth, handling the team on his own for the first time this year, anything is liable to happen.

The Kaws are not invulnerable as they have been scored on by every opponent, including Clintonville. The Red and White saw a touchdown marked against it only by St. Mary's of Menasha on a sleeper play but such is not likely to work again for a long time. The locals blanked Clintonville 13 to 0, Neenah 9 to 0 and West DePere 6 to 0.

Plenty of fan support is assured the New London gridgers Saturday. Kaukauna will be observing its homecoming game and special busses are arranging to take loads of students to the game. Every adult fan who can get away will be at the scene.

The regular eleven will start for New London with Kenneth Poppy and Charles Clark at ends, Ray Baerwald and Wally Hammerberg at tackles, Bud Mavis and Lester Schimke at guards, Karl Heimbruch center, Gordon Melklejohn quarterback, Harold Pues and Weldon Harris halfback and Bob Houk fullback.

Clintonville Out To 'Beat Marion'

Clintonville—"Beat Marion" is the theme of the Clintonville homecoming which will be climaxed tonight when the Clinton meet the Marion Pigeons in a non-conference game at the local Athletic field promptly at 7:30. Both teams will be striving for their first win of the season. For Clintonville it will be a chance for the first win since it defeated Marion the last time in 1936. Last Friday Marion bowed to Omro 13 to 7 to spoil the Pigeon homecoming and is out to do the same to the Clinton tonight. Clintonville, on the other hand, is keyed up. For once the Clinton will hold the edge on their opponents but aren't going to take any chances by letting up. Last year the Clintonville boys were rated odds on favorites against the Pigeons but let up and came home on the short end. Going back over the scores of past games, the Clinton have won eight out of ten. Marion won victories in the last two years. Clintonville came out of last week's game against Kaukauna, the potential champs of the Northeastern conference, unscathed and will be in perfect condition for this evening.

Henry Armstrong Puts Title on Block Tonight

Seattle (AP)—Hammering Henry Armstrong, the fightest champion in the business, puts his welterweight crown on the chopping block tonight against Richie Fontaine of Missoula, Mont. They're scheduled for 15 rounds at the Civic auditorium, which has a 9,000 seating capacity. There was little or no wagering on the outcome, everybody figuring Henry a cinch to retain his title. About the only person with much faith in Fontaine's chances was Fontaine. Richie has gone 20 rounds against Armstrong, winning a 10-rounder and losing another to the Negro at the same distance three years ago.

8 Menasha Seniors To Play Last Home Grid Game Tonight

Seniors Will Start Against West DePere in N.E.W. Conference Tilt

MENASHA — Eight Menasha High school seniors will play their last home football game at 8 o'clock tonight when the Bluejays oppose the West De Pere High school team in a Northeastern Wisconsin conference game.

Seven of the seniors will be in the starting lineup and the eighth will not start only because there are three guards among the seniors. Those who will start tonight are Norman Michie and Gordon Wasinger at ends, William Woodhead at tackle, Kenneth Wolff at center, William Schmitzer at quarterback and Richard Sheleski at left half. The other three seniors are Kenneth Finch, Glenn Dillrogge and Gene Grode, all guards, with the first two probably starting the game. Wolff and Grode are the co-captains.

Marzell probably will start at the other tackle position while Denney also is certain to see action there. Robinson again will start at the fullback position. The right half position will be taken by Robert Nantke or Roland O'Brien, depending on whether the Bluejays receive the opening kickoff or do the kicking. Other players who will get into the action are Wippich at end, De Long at guard, and Michalkiewicz at center, Funk at guard and Reck at tackle.

New Packers Will Oppose Detroit

Bays and Lions to Clash Sunday Before a Record Crowd

Green Bay — Detroit's mighty Lions, undefeated and untied in four National Football league starts this season, invade Green Bay Sunday for one of the most crucial contests on the league calendar. Green Bay has lost only one game this year, and is hot on the heels of the western division pace-setters.

The game is slated for 2 o'clock at City stadium before what promises to be a near capacity crowd. Interest in nearby cities, especially those in upper Michigan, is hotter than ever. The Michigan fans, long followers of the Packers, find their allegiance split on the game against Detroit. Chartered buses, special train arrangements, and every other available means of transportation will be utilized for the trek to the game.

While the Lions were taking the measure of the Cleveland Rams last week, the Packers were engaged in taking an exhibition contest from the St. Louis Gunners of the American league. The practice tilt enabled Coach Curly

Guenther, Stanton Win Amateur Bouts

THE RESULTS Frank Guenther, LaCrosse, defeated Dick Meyer, Racine, (latter disqualified in third for going down without being hit). Duke Stanton, Racine, defeated Lyle Mason, LaCrosse, in five rounds.

Jimmy Coyne, Fond du Lac, defeated Robert Amundson, LaCrosse, in three rounds. Wilbur Ott, LaCrosse, defeated Tuffy Toonen, Appleton in three rounds. Al McPherson, Keshena, defeated Bob Hannes, Oshkosh, in three rounds. Eddie Troxel, Oshkosh, defeated Carleton Fuerst, Appleton, in three rounds. Smokey Van Bostel, Little Chute, stopped Marty Siebers, Kaukauna, in the first round.

F RANK GUENTHER, LaCrosse, defeated Dick Meyer, Racine, and Duke Stanton, Racine, in the double windup events of Oney Johnston post's first amateur card of the season here Thursday night at Armory G. Meyer lost his fight to Guenther because, after being clipped with an overhead right that set him on his back, he got up and then went down again without being hit. It was obvious that he became confused after being dropped. Instinctively he started to get up, saw his corner motion him to stay down and take a count, and then started to carry out the instructions. However, he had violated the rules and Referee Otto Cronce had no other choice than to disqualify him and award the bout to Guenther.

Guenther Trailing The knockdown came in the first 30 seconds of the third frame. Guenther, trailing slightly at the time, came out for the third heat in a crouch, and in the first exchange looped his right over Meyer's shoulder and down he went. The referee started the count. Meyer bounced up and then went down again and it was all over. The opening round was even with neither showing much. In the second Meyer earned a slight edge by tossing a tantalizing left into Guenther's face.

Duke Stanton, Racine, weaved and bobbed and punched his way to a win over Lyle Mason, LaCrosse, in the other windup. The boys drew a big hand from the crowd, there being hardly a dull moment during the go. In the first the fighters squared away to feel out each other, cut showed every inclination to stand and trade leather. The second saw Mason get the better of things in close and several toe-to-toe skirmishes perked up the fans. As the third frame opened the Lambeau to test many of his first year players who had spent most of their time on the bench in the tough league games. Making his first appearance in the Green Bay lineup was Jimmy Lawrence, former Texas Christian back who probably will see considerable action Sunday. Also new to the Green Bay lineup is Gus Zarnas, formerly of Ohio State, who came to the Packers from the Brooklyn Dodgers early this week. The Packers continued to work on a passing-running combination this week with Cecil Isbell, Arnold Herber and Lawrence doing most of the throwing, and Isbell, Clarke Hinkle, Larry Buhler and Andy Uram doing most of the work on the ground. Hinkle, Isbell, Herber and Lawrence shared punting duties.

Milwaukee—Trainer Eddie Rozmarynoski of the Marquette university football team was bragging after the Hilltoppers' 17-14 win over Michigan State that the game marked the first time in his six years on the job that he had not been called on the field to administer first aid to an injured player.

Neenah Expected To Give Shawano Eleven a Battle

Red Rockets Have Worked Hard and Hope to Please Homecomers

NEENAH — Although Neenah High school's grid squad only has an outside chance of defeating the highly touted Shawano eleven in the Rockets' homecoming game here at 2:15 Saturday afternoon, Coach George Christoph's gridders will be out to give the Indians one of its toughest battles this season.

In preparation for the game this week, the Rockets went through one of the most strenuous blocking drills any Neenah team has had, and Coach Christoph expects this training to pay dividends Saturday.

Despite a heavy week of practice, the Rockets Thursday afternoon showed plenty of pep in a scrimmage session, and they performed well against the Indians' pet plays.

Rated as the underdogs, the Neenah aggregation has very little to lose and every thing to gain Saturday afternoon, and there is no doubt but what the Rocket mentor will throw every thing he has in his portfolio into the conflict.

Seeking First Win
Neenah is seeking its first victory of the season, having lost four straight games including two Northwestern Wisconsin conference tilts and as many nonconference games. Shawano has won two conference games and lost one.

The Neenah High school student body will get behind the eleven with a homecoming celebration starting Friday afternoon with a pep meeting, and a pep parade will be held at 7 o'clock in the evening. The parade will begin at Washington school and the high school band, under the direction of Lester Mais, will lead the parade, which will conclude at the Green where a large bonfire and pep rally will be staged. A dance will be held in the gymnasium Saturday night.

Appleton High To Battle Fondy

len are in good condition for the first time in weeks.

With the return to action of the regulars, the Terrors will have an adequate supply of reserves for the first time. Most of them saw action against Manitowoc and Central and will get into the game tomorrow.

Fondy du Lac has been thoroughly scouted by Terror coaches in the last two weeks, and the mentors are certain they have worked out a defense that will befuddle the invaders.

Manitowoc at East
The top game of the week's conference program will take place at Green Bay East stadium tonight when Manitowoc and the Red Devils tangle. The Ships have come along fast this season despite reports they wouldn't have much. East has gone along as usual and as a result both are undefeated.

Another game that may alter league standings considerably will take place at Oshkosh tonight with Green Bay West the opponent. West is undefeated but hasn't been too impressive. Oshkosh has been up and down but it has a fair amount of stuff and if the West backs aren't too fast, Oshkosh may cop.

The other conference game is at Sheboygan where the Northside team will tangle with Central at the ball park. Central is a slight favorite in a game where anything may happen.

Chicago Will Put Up Fight Despite Michigan's Power

BY EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO — Another football massacre is in prospect at old Stagg field tomorrow when "Tearing Tommy" Harmon & company of Michigan surround Chicago's mild Maroons—but the one man who should be worrying about it says he isn't worrying at all.

He is Clark Shaughnessy, head football coach at Chicago, whose Maroons last enjoyed a Western conference victory back in 1936 and only last Saturday took a 61 to 0 wallop from Harvard.

As a result a lot of soft-hearted fans are going around muttering "those poor dear boys" and "it's a shame they have to play those rough Michigan boys." And is Mr. Shaughnessy voicing the same sentiments? Is he looking ahead to a miserable afternoon squirming on the Chicago bench?

Let's give him the ball: "Sure, we're outclassed," he smiled today. "There isn't any use kidding ourselves. The boys were pretty well stoved in after the Harvard game and practice this week has them more tired than ever. Also, my best boy isn't much better—or worse—than my last. But why all the hullabaloo?

Al Simmons Suggested as Candidate for Hall of Fame

NEW YORK — (AP)—The release of Al Simmons by the Cincinnati Reds provides another strong candidate for baseball's hall of fame, for the Milwaukee Pole was a mighty man in his heyday with Connie Mack's last great club at Philadelphia.

Unfortunately for his chances of entering the Cooperstown portals soon, Al has hung on in the big leagues a few years longer than he needed to and was no galloping gazelle toward the last. But when the boys have forgotten that and start spading up Simmons' record over the fat years, they will find it increasingly difficult to leave him out of the up-state temple.

The lowest that "foot-in-the-bucket" Al hit in his eight big seasons with the Athletics was .308, and that was in his first year 1924. Thereafter he compiled successive averages of .386, .343, .392, .351, .365, .381, .390 and .322 in 1934, when well past his prime, he still was able to bat .344 for the Chicago White Sox.

Twice the big outfielder led the American league in hitting, twice he led the pack in total hits and total bases, and once drove across more runs than any rival. In three world series he compiled an average of .333, his 23 hits in the play-offs going for 46 bases.

MAX MANAGE
Milwaukee — (AP)—Al Simmons, Milwaukeean who made baseball batting history despite his "foot-in-the-bucket" stance, said today he hopes to continue in the national pastime as a coach or manager.

Simmons was given his unconditional release yesterday by the Cincinnati Reds.

"When I joined the Reds late in August, I had an agreement with (Manager Bill) McKechnie that I would be given my unconditional release if the Reds didn't plan to play me regularly next season," Simmons said. "I asked for this clause so I could open negotiations for a managerial or coaching post early enough in the fall."

Simmons, here for a visit with relatives and for some golf, added that while he has nothing definitely arranged, he has feelers out and has been approached unofficially by representatives of one or two major league clubs relative to affiliation with them.

There have been reports that Simmons would become a coach for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Simmons will go to Hot Springs, Ark. shortly for his annual golf and training trip, but denied that he plans to make that city his home.

High School Band Has Practice at Bear Creek

Badgers Ready For Northwestern

Stuhldreher Hopes Squad Will Hit Its Stride Away From Home

MADISON — (AP)—Coach Harry Stuhldreher, hopeful that his boys will hit their stride away from home, assembled 36 members of the University of Wisconsin football squad today for their first road trip of the season.

The Badgers will leave this afternoon for Evanston to meet Northwestern's Wildcats tomorrow in a game that will decide which of the two teams will remain in the Western conference title race. Both have lost one Big Ten contest.

Following yesterday's light kicking and dummy workout, stressing both offense and defense, Stuhldreher said he had not decided who would start at left halfback, key spot in the Badger backfield. The choice lay between Bill Schmitz, a veteran, and Bob Peterson, a sophomore shifted to that position a few days ago.

The Badger coach said Don Miller, sophomore, would start at right half, Fred Gage at quarter, and George Paskvan at fullback. The only change in the line, he added, would put Einar Tomorrow at right tackle in place of Al Dorsch. Bob Eckl will be at the other tackle; Al Lorenz and Ralph Moeller at ends; Bob Holloway and Dick Embick at guards, and Jack Murray at center.

The Wisconsin players expected a stiff battle with the Wildcats, who will be seeking to avenge a 20-13 defeat handed them by the Badgers last year when their title hopes were soaring.

Grounds Graded For Skating Rink

Area 250 Feet Square to Be Flooded Next Winter at Chilton

CHILTON — The vacant grounds to the north and east of the city hall are being graded so that they can be flooded easily during cold weather and used for a skating rink. The rink will be 250 feet square.

Advantages which the artificial rink will have over the ice on the river over the State street dam are that there will never be any danger of breaking through, removal of snow may be effected more readily and with greater safety than from the river, and flooding the rink at any time it is necessary may be accomplished with greater ease.

The city also has completed work on the parking area west of the city hall which will now accommodate 70 cars. The area has been covered with crushed stone. Owing to its central location and easy accessibility it is expected to be a popular parking spot on occasions when traffic is heavy in the city.

Another project set for completion this fall is the grading of the baseball field at Hobart park. The grounds are to be surfaced smoothly and drainage will be arranged so that the diamond will dry quickly after rains.

All of these projects have been assigned by the city council to Hubert R. Schmidtkofer, street commissioner. Mr. Schmidtkofer has a crew of seven men working on the projects.

Do you want ALL-WINTER RADIATOR PROTECTION FOR ONLY $1.00?

HERE'S THE WAY many car owners do it every year: They put in a couple of quarts of Du Pont "Zerone" early in the season for protection against rusting and the sudden cold snaps they know will come.

When winter gets down to real business, they add enough "Zerone" to protect them to lower temperatures. A total of six quarts, put in as needed, can protect a car with an average size cooling system for the entire winter. And six quarts of "Zerone" cost only $1.50! Just one gallon of "Zerone" protects an average size cooling system (15 quarts) to 17. Five quarts would protect it to 12. Six quarts to 17.

You may need a little more or less, depending on the condition and capacity of your car radiator and the severity of winter in your neighborhood. But the unusual efficiency of Du Pont "Zerone" will save you real money.

PROTECTS AGAINST RUST AND CORROSION
"Zerone" in a clean cooling system prevents rust and corrosion, which reduce operating efficiency. It gives better dissipation of engine heat, avoids power losses. Protect your car with "Zerone" this very day! Remember, it's only $1.00 a gallon, 25¢ a quart.

Nobody's Sure How Much Ohio Dream-Bucks Plan Would Cost

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

Cleveland—Believe it or not, here is a state of the American union—and one of the good states, too, with colleges and high schools as common as filling stations and enough Phi Beta Kappa keys to gild a state-house dome—going to the polls a short time hence to vote on a dream-bucks proposition without knowing whether this pension plan will cost

$50,000,000 a year or $382,000,000. Fifty million is the figure hit upon by the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, an inveterate politico-religious bleeding heart and carpetbagger of Cincinnati who has muscled—or chiseled—in on the Townsend movement and offered a constitutional amendment providing pensions of $50 a month for single-handed persons over 60 and $80 a month for couples over 60 living together.

The Ohio emergency council, a statistical and propaganda bureau hurriedly tossed together, estimates the cost as either $382,838,000 under one interpretation of the amendment or not less than $303,260,000 a year under the most optimistic construction. The state tax commissioner, after long and devout study of the proposal itself, which is fruitful with ambiguities and imponderables, and of the established tax data, has put down $310,000,000 as his guess.

Moreover, Mr. Bigelow, a member of the God will provide school of economics, himself has indulged in a roomy variation, for he once reckoned the cost at $100,000,000 a year, but blew on his fingers and cooled them off when the enemy began to predict that the schools must close and the kiddies become little bums to provide money for the citizens in his age bracket.

Now, old age has its platform and box office appeal, as many sweaty hallelujah-shouters and politician piecemen have discovered to their profit since Dr. Townsend first emerged from the mental confusion known on the map as Los Angeles. But the little ones are sure-fire, too, and a choice between starving the one and blighting the other is a cruel and unusual test of citizenship.

Newspapers Politic But Offer 200 Million Guesses
Mr. Bigelow has fought long and, for the most part, rather plaintively

Members of the Alpha club entertained their husbands at a 7 o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Griffin Sunday evening. BALLOON SIGNALS

In the world of aviation, balloons do not amount to a great deal nowadays. Airplanes have taken their place. The airplane goes faster, and is more sure of reaching its goal.

By the use of helium gas, Zeppelins can be made safe from explosion of the gas bag. It may be that this form of balloon will come back into use, some day, but we cannot say for sure.

The old-fashioned balloon, with a ball-shaped bag, is almost a thing of the past, so far as use for travel goes. Yet we must give it honor. It was the only means of air travel for more than a century before airplanes were made to fly.

Balloons are of some use in warfare. They can be sent up to "observe" the enemy, but they do not now seem so good for this purpose as the airplane.

Another use of balloons is to guard cities. Before Great Britain entered the war against Germany, a balloon protection for the city of London had been worked out. Captive balloons were prepared to take up long strips of metal which would hang down and block the way of airplanes. The same plan was followed to protect Paris and Berlin.

Small balloons have proved of great help to weather experts who wanted to learn facts about the winds and the temperature high above the ground. Airplanes can be used for this purpose, but they cannot go so high as balloons.

A modern type of weather-testing balloon has a bag four feet wide. It carries thermometers and other instruments to heights of 11 miles or more.

Rising higher and higher, this balloon gives out automatic radio signals, and men below listen to them. In that way they learn the height of the balloon, the temperature, and facts about the winds. The rubber bag of the balloon swells as it rises into thinner and thinner air. At length it breaks. Then the instruments, fastened to a parachute, fall to the ground.

Hollywood — With series pictures becoming increasingly popular, screen actors are facing a new menace. To demonstrate, consider the case of Jed Prouty, whose "success" as the pater familias in the "Jones Family" classics has not proved an unmitigated blessing.

Prouty is one of the best character actors in Hollywood and, as such, should be constantly busy. But he's become so closely identified with one character in the Jones pictures that directors seldom give him a thought when other roles are to be filled—or, if they do, rule him out because they fear that to audiences he is "Mr. Jones" and no one else. The net result is that Jed has been limited by his own "success" to approximately twelve weeks work per annum.

The same fate threatened Sidney Toler, but he craftily dodged the financial disaster. When he learned he was set to play Charlie Chan, he dashed out and lined up the most villainous assortment of side roles to be found in Hollywood. After seeing him in one or two of these, 20th Century-Fox executives realized something had to be done lest fans lose their subconscious love of Chan in self-protection they gave Toler a 40-week contract.

Currently, more than twenty series are going full speed ahead. I wonder how many of the players involved will fare as well as Toler—or as poorly as Prouty?

MARGOT STEVENSON—whose eyes evidently won't behave—had two successful Broadway years in "You Can't Take It With You" before coming to Hollywood and the jumping gelatinous. Her newest pictures are Warners' "Smashing the Money Ring" and "Philo Vance Comes Back."

Plan Hearings on "Irregularities" in Highway Department

Madison—(AP)—August Frey, head of the state division of research, notified Governor Heil Thursday he would start a series of public hearings next Tuesday on "irregularities" in the state highway department.

Frey declined to comment on what evidence he expected would be produced or the nature of alleged irregularities.

The hearings will be held at the capitol, starting at 9 o'clock a. m. The research department has been engaged for several months on an investigation of the highway department. It had accountants at work going over all phases of its business.

Frey said the subjects to be taken up at the hearings had been grouped and would be discussed item by item, but he did not think it wise to make any comment in advance.

The department is under the supervision of a three-man commission headed by Chairman William E. O'Brien, who was reappointed by Governor Heil this year. The other members are Thomas F. Davlin and Thomas J. Pattison.

mann of New York City, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men.

"If anyone seems to be amazed," he said at a regional meeting of the organization, "you can say that it is not just my opinion. It's a matter of credit men's records."

One of the most encouraging characteristics of the post-World war depression, he said, was the proof that the average man intended to pay his bills.

Effectiveness of Chains on Slippery Streets Over-Rated

Atlantic City, N. J. — (AP) — Now that winter is coming on, the National Safety Congress had some advice today to motorists.

It reported the effectiveness of non-skid tires, chains and abrasives were over-rated by motorists who place too much confidence in them.

Summed up, its advice was:

1. Never drive faster than 20 miles an hour on ice, even with chains.
2. On slippery surfaces, always keep the car in gear.
3. Keep the car's load distributed evenly. Don't have three passengers in the front seat and one in the back.

4. Remember that non-skid tires are helpful on wet pavements and to some extent on snow, but give no more protection on ice than smooth tires.
5. When driving on ice or snow, use chains on all four wheels. That will reduce stopping distances 40 to 50 per cent. Chains on rear wheels only help brakeage 25 to 30 per cent.
6. Accelerate cautiously, to avoid spinning the dead wheels.
7. Pump the brakes in stopping, even when using chains, to keep the wheels rolling.

8. If you start to skid, turn the front wheels in the direction the rear is skidding.
9. When it is slippery, try out the brakes occasionally to get the "feel" of the road.
10. Keep your brakes equalized.

DOG STAYED BY HIS MASTER—Regina, Can. —(AP)—Tracked down by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police dog, Nelson Sammy, an Indian, shot and killed Constable W. E. Rhodeniser. Sammy was shot in the breast and hip, but will recover. His arrest not far away was the culmination of a three-day hunt. The police dog lay beside Rhodeniser and would take no further interest in the eventual capture.
